Irish War, Again Turning Ink White Many Lives in One What Schimansky Knows

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1921.

All English soldiers "on leave from Ireland" will return to their regiments immediately. This looks like renewal of the Irish war.

The Irish are willing to fight and be killed. It will take a great deal of killing to destroy the Irish Republic, and after five years of the other war the English have little stomach for killing.

Make a memorandum of this prediction. The work of coercing the south of Ireland will be turned over to the north of Ireland, and the Irish war will change from war between England and the Sinn Fein Republic to civil war.

Mr. Tchitcherin, hopeful Bolshevik, says "the capital system will collapse" when it comes in contact with Russia in a business way.

He might as well hope that a drop of milk in an ink bottle would turn the ink white.

What has happened to other revolutions will happen to the Russian revolution. When foreign trade and possession of national resources makes the revolutionists rich, they will become thoughtful and conservative.

Still is true Prudhomme's saying: "Monarchies are destroyed by poverty, and republics are destroyed by wealth"—revolution also is destroyed by wealth—when the revolutionists get the wealth.

Zukor, moving picture man, is insured for five millions. His life is worth it, and more, which shows that one life can be made into many lives—in money making, which is not important, and in knowledge production, which is important.

The profit on the life of an average man is about $1 a day above his keep. Therefore, if an average man worked three hundred days every year for one hundred years his whole life would be worth $30,000.

Zukor in forty years has made his life worth five millions, as much as three hundred average lives of 100 years. Mr. Rockefeller very early made his life worth as much as one hundred thousand average 100-year lives, financially.

By promoting education and science Mr. Rockefeller has made his life worth one hundred million average lives. What is the life value of Shakespeare, Newton or Lincoln?

In the case of Joseph Schimansky, retired grocer, it was the man's turn to curse gold and society.

Usually the American captain of industry gets rich, discovers that his old-fashioned wife doesn't understand or appreciate him, isn't fit to shine in the social realms to which his money carries him. He gets rid of her, and gets another—younger, thinner, faster.

With Mr. Schimansky it was the other way round. He was happy when he ran his grocery store and his wife helped him. Then he got rich. Now wife and children, he says, bought him a fine house. He doesn't know how to live in it, so he is put out to live in a room by himself, and his wife wants a divorce. Mr. Schimansky can sympathize with some old-fashioned American wives.

General Pershing, much pleased with military training camps for young citizens, hopes to establish camps for young women.

Thousands of young women, employed as clerks, are expected to take at least two weeks' vacation in Summer when business is dull. Training camps that would give them a chance to live outdoors, well fed, wisely, moderately exercised and drilled, with a camp for young gentlemen soldiers not too far away, and a big dancing floor, half way between, would be admirable.

It might not do much to increase the defense of the country, but it would increase cheerfulness. It also might increase marriage. That is important.

Miss Robertson of Oklahoma, only lady in Congress, will be very useful persuading other women to run for Congress to offset her views. Be it said most respectfully, Miss Robertson represents the female opinion of the early General Grant period.

She thinks no woman should share in the disarmament conference, that women are not qualified to discuss such important questions. Why did she run for Congress?

What about the men? Miss Robertson says woman, to be fit for that conference, should be able to speak several languages fluently.

President Wilson can speak only one fluently, but he went to Paris.

For one man in the United States, native born, that can "speak several languages fluently" there are two or three women able to do the same.

The disarmament conference deals with fighting men. Women produce the fighting men, therefore the disarmament conference is their conference.

More than five million seven hundred thousand idle men in the United States is the official count. This means less income, harder struggling for those that would

CLEANS UP MYSTERY OF DETROIT SLAYINGS

Confession of Man Held in New York May Lead to Capture of "Good Killers"

By Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 17.—Detroit police today were at work on what they asserted was one of the first tangible clews to the wave of murder and bombing outrages that has been sweeping through the local Italian colony in the past four years.

The arrest in New York yesterday of Bartolow Fontano, former Detroit barber, and the information he gave concerning the murder of eight Italians here, led local authorities to believe that some light might be shed on the 70 killings, which have been recorded in the Italian colony here since 1917.

Only five of the victims of the gang, with which Fontano is said to have admitted his connection, had been identified by the public today, from New York reports but it was believed that when possible discrepancies in the names were cleared up, the others would also be known.

ALL SHOT TO DEATH.

Local crimes which Fontano detailed to the New York police ranged over a period extending from the latter part of 1917 to May, this year. All of the victims were shot to death and in each instance, the slayer escaped.

Pietro Bosco, a wealthy member of the colony, was killed in his garage late in 1917, and the murder was scribed to local gunmen.

In January, 1918, Antonio Giannala, another prominent member of the colony, and reputed leader of a gang that was said to have been responsible for many deaths, was shot to death as he stepped from his automobile in front of a residence where he had gone to visit the family of an Italian who had been killed by his son-in-law.

SUSPECTS ACQUITTED.

Sam Giannola, his brother, who the police believe is the Salvatore Giannola to whom Fontano referred, was shot down in front of a bank in October, 1918. e had been arrested several times in connection with the murder of Italians. One man was convicted for killing Giannola but was later granted a new trial and acquitted.

Brookline Cuntry Club, Aug. 17.—Francis Ouimet and Jock Hutchison, representing America, led George Duncan and Abe Mitchell of England by three up at the end of the first eighteen holes of their thirty-six-hole match here today.

The brilliant driving of Ouimet was the feature of the morning play. At the tenth green Ouimet holed a forty-foot putt. He made several fifteen to twenty-foot putts.

The playing of the Woodlawn star was remarkable throughout the first eighteen holes. It reminded one of his sensational performance in 1913, when, on the same links, he turned back the golfing surge of Vardon and Ray, the two great English professionals.

Ouimet brought a round of applause from the big gallery when he got a birdie 2 on the tenth green.

On the thirteenth green, Ouimet once more proved his calibre when he got a birdie three.

Hutchinson also played a strong, steady game and was always equal to the spurts by the Englishmen.

Duncan and Mitchell gave their usual steady exhibition, but were not able to overcome the brilliant playing of the Amercans.

The crowd which had gathered about the grave at St. Michael's Cemetery, Roslindale, swayed at the sound and sight, and another woman, standing on the edge of the throng, toppled over.

Both women were unconscious for more than fifteen minutes, when a doctor in the crowd succeeded in bringing them back to consciousness and had Mrs. Cuneo carried to a limousine and sent home.

The widow, who since the death of her husband at the hands of Philip F. Whelan has been living on her nerve appeared almost on the verge of col

Brother of Victim Seriously Injured When Motorcycle Hits Post at High Speed

George A. McDonald, 16 years old, of West Newton, was almost instantly killed today when the motorcycle on which he was riding behind his elder brother, "Mac," struck a post at Crafts and Waltham streets, West Newton, driving a screwdriver the boy was holding in his hand through his throat. Francis was badly injured and taken to the Newton hospital by Dr. Cody.

The two boys were riding down Crafts street, intending to turn into Waltham, but by mistake passed the corner. Francis, who was driving, made a wide swing to return. He miscalculated and the machine ran at high speed directly into a post.

George was thrown almost over his brother's head, his own striking against the base of the post, fracturing his skull.

The sharp blade of the screwdriver which he held in his right hand, ripped open his throat from ear to ear. He was dead when assistance reached them.

The machine glanced off the post and crashed into a stone wall a few feet father on. Francis was thrown off, sustaining possible internal injuries and cuts and bruises on his right arm and leg.

London, Aug. 17.—A general order was issued to the Irish Republican army at Dublin today to prepare for any contingency. The order forecast that the Republican soldiers would be called upon to make greater sacrifices than at any time in the past.

The critical Irish situation was reviewed by the British cabinet just before noon. It was understood that Premier Lloyd George decided to make a statement to the House of Commons later in the day. Official circles are pessimistic over the latest developments at Dublin.

Following is the text of the order to the officers and men of the Irish Republican army:

"Communications between the Irish Republican government and the British government have been made public and serve to emphasize towards the officers and men of the Irish Republican army the paramount importance of being prepared for every contingency that may arise from a military viewpoint.

"Now, as always, in safeguarding the rights and liberties of the Irish people, they depend upon the Irish Republican army. It is our business to be as efficient and highly trained as possible and ready for every emergency.

"No opportunity should be neglected in improving our drill and training and in making ourselves truly effective soldiers of the Irish Republican army. The republic exists now and always will. It remains for us to do our best in its service, realizing that the sacrifices we have already made may be less than those

IRISH WILL REJECT BRITISH PEACE TERMS, DECLARES DE VALERA

WILL NOT BE FOOLED THIS TIME, SAYS LEADER

we shall be called upon to make in the future.

"The future lies with us if we do our utmost."

Will Not Accept Terms, Declares De Valera

Dublin, Aug. 17. (By the Associated Press.)—Eamon de Valera, Irish Republican leader, declared that the Dail Eireann would not accept the terms offered by the British government, extending to Ireland an offer of dominion status.

Mr. De Valera made this declaration at the second session of the Dail Eireann, held in the Mansion House, to take up the question of the negotiations with Premier Lloyd George with regard to possible Irish settlement.

"From reports this morning in the British and foreign press," said Mr. De Valera, "there seems to be doubt as to what our attitude is towards the British proposals. There seems to be doubt as to whether what I have said or whether our letter means acceptance or rejection.

WILL NOT BE FOOLED.

"There ought to be no doubt in anybody's mind. We cannot and will not, on behalf of this nation, accept these terms.

"There is an old Indian proverb reading, 'Fool me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me.' The Irish people will not be fooled this time.

"It is said we are offered the status of dominion home rule for Ireland—the status of the British dominions. Ireland is offered no such thing. The statement that Ireland was offered a dominion status contained two falsehoods. Where is Ireland? There is no Ireland in the terms, but two broken pieces of Ireland.

"What was offered was not even dominion status. It was admitted the dominions had the right to secede and could get out if they desired. We are told we must stay in whether we like it or not.

"We are not claiming the right to secede. There cannot be a question of secession, because there has never been union.

WOULD CONCEDE MUCH.

"Northern Ireland has regarded itself from its own viewpoint, and in entering negotiations they need not give up that point of view. I would be willing to suggest to the Irish people that they give up a good deal to have Ireland able to look into the future without anticipating distracting internal problems.

"All the time these negotiations have meant an attempt to get into touch with the people of the North and tell them we have no enmity and would make sacrifices for them which we would never think of making for Britain. We will be ready to give them every safeguard any reasonable person could say they were entitled to, and we are ready to leave the question of the North to external arbitration, or leave the whole question to external arbitration.

"England's claim is unreasonable. The claims of the minority in Ireland are unreasonable. But even unreasonable claims we would be ready to consider, and I for one would be ready to go a long way to give way to them, particularly to their sentiment, if we could get them to come with us and consider the interests of their own country and not be allying themselves with foreigners."

Mr. de Valera said the Irish nation did not stand between England and the world and was not shutting up the seas between the two islands.

NO ENMITY TO ENGLAND.

"We have no enmity to England," he declared. "At least if this question were settled I believe there would be none. The only enmity is to that rule which the Irish people hate to the marrow of their bones."

It was said, remarked the Republican leader, that the Irish question was a problem. It was a problem, he declared—a problem of a powerful, selfish person wishing to encroach upon the rights, the property and the freedom of his neighbors. That was the fundamental problem to be settled. Human nature had to be taken into consideration, he pointed out, and they who were working for a complete and final settlement were to see to it that relations must be adjusted on the basis of right. Therefore, in considering the problem, they who had right on their side, he said, must count.

"The Irish people won't flinch now because more arms are being sent for," he declared.

LOOKING TOWARD ULSTER.

An entirely fresh audience was in the Mansion House today for the session, it having been decided to issue new tickets each day so as to satisfy the demands of the thousands who want to attend the sittings.

As soon as the applause given the members as they entered had died down the Dail proceeded to business, Mr. De Valera taking up the question of the negotiations.

The public meeting of the Dail Eireann was adjourned this afternoon to an indefinite date. Private sessions will be held beginning tomorrow.

As to the press, the moderate organs among the newspapers refrain from passing opinion upon the terms, but quote freely from the American and British press.

Recall of Troops Precautionary Measure

London, Aug. 17 (By the Associated Press).—The measures taken to recall British troops on leave to their units in Ireland, announced yesterday, were stated in official circles here today to be purely of a precautionary nature.

It was further asserted that the steps taken were not aggressively precautionary, because the last thing the British government would do would be to take any steps to break the Irish truce. It was realized in official quarters that the firing of the first shot on either side was likely to mean the resumption of sporadic outbursts of fighting throughout Southern Ireland.

No British officers or soldiers were in evidence anywhere during the opening of the Dail Eireann.

The belief throughout British official circles is that the longer the truce lasts the harder it will be to break it.

THINKS HUSBAND IS BEING HELD CAPTIVE

Wife of Missing Arthur A. Woodbury of Waltham Convinced He Is Alive

"Arthur A. Woodbury is not dead. He is the victim of a plot to keep him from me."

Mrs. Woodbury, wife of the missing salesman and former alderman of Waltham, who disappeared from the Hotel Lafayette, Buffalo, on July 27 and has not been heard from since, expressed the above opinion today.

"It is absurd to believe that such a man as my husband could have run away from home. He loved his home. He had scores of friends here. The only thing he disliked about his present work was that it took him away from home so much.

"It is equally absurd to talk about his having been killed. My husband and I were always close in spirit, and if anything had happened to kill him I should have felt it immediately.

"No, I believe that he is being held prisoner for some reason I can not divine, certainly not for ransom or we should have heard some word of the kidnapers before this.

"He is being held incommunicado and sooner or later you will find that is so."

According to reports from Buffalo, where the search for the missing man centres, the police of that city do not agree with Mrs. Woodbury. They are convinced that he has been done away with, although as yet they have no evidence to support that theory.

Herman Ritter, mentioned by Woodbury in his last letter to his wife, has been questioned and discharged, but the police are tracing his movements prior to July 27, and are also trying to learn the whereabouts of two trunks Ritter is said to have shipped from Buffalo that day.

CROWD GASPS AT LITTLE GIRL ON WINDOW SILL

5-Year-Old Lillian Burns Walks On Second-Story Washington Street Ledge

Hundreds of men and women stood spellbound early this afternoon as they watched little five-year-old Lillian Burns of No. 45 Thomas Park, South Boston, climb out of a second story window at No. 427 Washington street and lean perilously over the edge.

The child walked fearlessly along the ledge without holding on to anything. Her mother was across the street and the child waved and shouted joyfully to her. Mrs. Burns was unable to speak as she saw the perilous position of her child. The crowd that jammed the corner of Washington and Summer streets held its breath waiting for the fall that seemed certain.

The child apparently did not realize her danger and continued to lean out over the edge and wave until Dr. F. J. Burns, her father, reached out of the window and pulled her back to safety.

"I wanted to wave to mamma," said the child as he gave her a curtain lecture.

TWO POLICEMEN ON TRAFFIC DUTY HURT

It was an unlucky day for traffic Policemen James F. Collins and John A. Stancar today. Both were injured while doing duty in different sections of the city, and were treated at the Haymarket Relief Hospital. Collins, who lives at No. 120 Regent street, was struck by a wheel of a Boston & Springfield Express Company wagon at Devonshire and State streets, sustaining contusions to the left side and back. Stancar, whose home is No. 229 Poplar street, was run over by an automobile truck at Canal and Causeway streets, sustaining injuries to his foot.

He was taken to the Carney Hospital and after being treated for a cut on his face returned to duty.

MAN LEAPS TO DEATH UNDER 'L' TRAIN

Throng Sees Unidentified Victim Dragged 50 Feet at Summer Street Station

While scores of horrified men and women gazed spellbound, an unidentified man leaped to his death in the path of an Everett-bound train at the Summer street station of the Subway today.

Two cars passed over his body, and he was dragged nearly fifty feet before the train could be brought to a stop. He was dead when Elevated employes reached his side.

According to eye-witnesses the man was noticed to be acting strangely on the platform shortly before the train appeared. He moved about restlessly and several times approached the edge of the platform. As the train drew into the station the man pulled himself together and dashing across the platform leaped directly into its path.

Michael J. Healy of No. 193 Blue Hill avenue, motorman of the train, said he made strenuous efforts to bring it to a stop when he saw the flying body. He applied the emergency brakes and reversed the power but the heavy mass, moving with considerable momentum, slid for some distance.

A wrecking crew was called, and the car under which the body laid was jacked up, while Elevated employes remover the tangled remains. Traffic was tied up on the outbound track for about an hour, passengers being routed by way of Park street and the surface.

The body was taken to the Northern Mortuary where an attempt will be made to identify it.

The victim was described as being from 50 to 55 years old, 155 pounds in weight, dark brown hair, partly bald, brown mustache and gray eyes. He wore a two-piece black worsted suit with gray stripe, white shirt with blue stripe, golf cap, heavy tan shoes and black socks. There was nothing in the pockets to aid in making identification.

2,500 PINTS OF BEER SEIZED IN RAID

Detroit, Aug. 17.—Michigan State police, endeavoring to check the flow of Canadian beer and liquor across the Detroit River from Windsor, made several raids along the waterfront early today, arresting eleven men and seizing a considerable quantity of contraband liquor. One raid netted 2,500 pints of Canadian beer and ale, in addition to a quantity of home brew.

Meanwhile Windsor attorneys were understood to be preparing today to forward to Ottawa thirty applications for charters for firms desiring to engage in the liquor export business.

One Windsor attorney drafting applications said the legality of the exportation of liquor to the United States was assured by the British North American Act of 1867. "It gives every individual the right to export all commodities, provided only that he make proper declaration at the customs house and pay the established duties there," he declared.

One company to which a charter is declared to have been issued is capitalized at $100,000, and its charter specifies it may have liquor for "export sale, either in a bonded liquor warehouse or any other warehouse."

NEW 'LOVE NEST' FOR MRS. LEEDS AND STILLMAN

"Other Woman" in Divorce Case Reported Established in Long Island Cottage

New York, Aug. 17.—James A. Stillman is reported to have established near Malba, Long Island, a new "love nest" for Florence Lawlor Leeds, the "other woman" in the famous divorce suit triangle.

On the strength of the report, representatives of Mrs. Stillman have instituted a new search for evidence, which is expected to be utilized when the hearings are renewed.

Early one day last week a palatial motor yacht, painted battleship gray and with name obliterated, anchored in Long Island Sound off the Belchurt Yacht Club. The arrival of the vessel was noted by a New York theatrical man and a friend with Wall street interests.

"It's Stillman's yacht Modesty," the theatrical man remarked.

Later an automobile sped by. A glance at the occupants was rewarded by recognition of Stillman and the woman with him, it is said, bore a close resemblance to Florence Leeds. Summer residents of the vicinity claim to have traced the couple to a cottage near the village of Malba, within five miles of the yacht club.

'COCKTAIL' SHIP MAKES PORT IN CALM SEA

Dock Workers Pause and Sniff—but That's All, Mates!

Customs officers, dock workers and others whose occupation took them on board the big Atlantic transport line motor ship Mississippi today sniffed wistfully at the door of a room adjacent to Captain J. I. J. Wylie's cabin. In that room, mates, are shipments of champagne, to say nothing of other shipments of whiskey, gin and vermouth. They are consigned to druggists and will be dispensed upon physicians' prescriptions. O cocktails, O moores! Six English foxhounds consigned to Frederick H. Prince of Beverly Farms multiplied to eleven two days ago when one of the hounds was visited by a flock ofstorks. The mother and five puppies are doing well.

The Mississippi's cargo manifest reads like a combination of a mail order store catalogue and an old-fashioned wine list. In addition to her strong waters for weak persons, she brought in from London and Antwerp shipments of rowboats and soap, farm seeds and glassware, bleaching chemicals and violins, chalk and willow furniture, old rope and dental supplies, tea and toys, basketware and gold leaf, et cetera, et cetera.

RECOMMENDS BULBS.

"On Ford cars not equipped with batteries, an approved device and a 21-candlepower nitrogen bulb must be used as on any other electrically-equipped car. A battery need not be installed if sufficient light is obtained at twenty miles an hour. One bulb manufacturer makes a 9-volt, 21-candlepower nitrogen bulb. Another manufacturer recommends the use of a 21-candlepower, 6-8-volt nitrogen bulb (Mazda 1130). If the 6-8 volt bulbs burn out at short intervals, install a standard Ford reactance coil in series with the headlamp circuit.

"A double filament 21-candlepower nitrogen bulb (Mazda 1158) is manufactured for use on late model Ford cars which take this type of bulb.

"No frosted bulbs or frosted glass fronts are permitted.

"Headlamps need be used only when in motion on an insufficiently lighted way.

"A plain clear glass front only may be used with a Brown reflector or a Fractolite.

"'Two-plus focal adjustment' for Shaler roadlighted means that the points of the Vs should be eight inches apart instead of four inches, as directed on the headlamp focusing card.

"Acetylene lamps equipped with six-inch mirrors, five-eighths-foot burners and clear glass fronts are approved for use on all types of motor vehicles."

MRS. OBENCHAIN'S HUSBAND FIGHTS SEIZURE OF WIFE'S TRUNK

DECLARES IT IS HIS PROPERTY

By Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 17.—Arrival of a trunk here late last night, consigned from San Francisco to Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, held in jail here on charges of murder, and the attempt of the sheriff's office to seize it as possible evidence, was the signal for a "fighting announcement" today by Ralph R. Obenchain, her divorced husband.

The trunk, according to Obenchain's statement, belongs to him, but Mrs. Obenchain had been using it. Some property in it, he said, belongs to him. It is a regulation army locker trunk.

"I will apply for an injunction as soon as the courts open this morning," he said, "to prevent seizure of the trunk without warrants."

THROUGH ACQUIESCING.

"I intend to show now that the defence is through with quietly acquiescing to every deed of the prosecution whether it hurts the right of the defendant or not."

Simultaneous with the publication of Obenchain's declaration to begin actively his campaign for the freeing of his former wife from the charge of implication in the mysterious slaying of J. Belton Kennedy, a statement is printed from Charles S. Summar, expected to be one of the star witnesses against Arthur C. Burch, college friend of Mrs. Obenchain's.

Shortly after Burch's arrest and indictment for murder, Summar told the authorities he had seen Burch in a roadster on the ocean highway near Santa Monica, the night of the slaying.

Summar accompanied Deputy Sheriff William Bright to the identical spot of the declared meeting and rehearsed what he said was the exact occurrence.

IDENTIFIES BURCH.

He said the meeting took place shortly after 10 o'clock the night of August 5. He and his wife were [illegible] along when a roadster speeded down upon them and after being crowded to one side of the road and being angered, he said, at the glare of the undimmed lights, Summar leaned [illegible] and "called down" the driver of the roadster. He spoke of the lights.

"Well," he said the driver of the roadster replied saccastically. "I'll trade lights with you."

The driver of the roadster, whom he said Mrs. Summar also plainly saw, was Burch, he declared. The meeting place was 200 yards west of the place where the stock of a shotgun believed to have been the one used by the slayer was washed ashore and found 16 hours after the shooting.

NEW LAW MAY ALLOW HOME BREWING

Make your own home brew.

You can if the amendment to the Willis-Campbell beer bill, which has been approved by the House of Representatives, finally becomes part of the bill and is approved by the President.

Under the terms of the amendment which provides that Federal agents must have search warrants in all proper form before entering a house, a man can go ahead and manufacture his own drinkables for his own use, without fear of having his front door battered down with axes in the hands of prohibition agents.

The amendment furthermore provides that search warrants shall issue, "only when there is reason to believe that such dwelling is used as a place for the manufacture of liquor for sale, or in which such liquor is sold."

Despite efforts on the part of the "drys" in Congress to defeat the amendment are reported from Washington. Representative Fields of Kentucky declared the amendment would virtually sanction home brewing, and urged that the words "for sale" be stricken out. This was defeated by a vote of 96 to 54.

Representative Volstead declared himself in favor of the House substitute, and said it would not change the policy of the prohibition enforcement bureau.

TINNEY IS NO LIFE SAVER—IN THESE DAYS

And Comedian Says Reported Fuss With Wife Is Rather Early

Frank Tinney, comedian, who has often played here, has issued an indignant denial that he is having trouble with his wife or that he has saved anybody from drowning at Long Beach, N. Y.

Tinney, interviewed in New York concerning the double rumor, was inclined to treat it humorously.

"My wife and I are usually reported separated as early as May," he said. "The report was delayed this year.

"As to the report that as a captain of life-guards I saved any lives, it is likewise false. A guard's reputation would suffer were he to go in the water. Please deny the ugly report that I have saved lives, particularly since the advent of prohibition."

"Tinney's beautiful wife has not been interviewed.

PAT CROWE ASKS FULLER'S AID TO SAVE BOYS

Reformed Outlaw After Vocational Training for Youngsters

Pat Crowe, reformed outlaw, who is now preaching the gospel of righteousness, today gave it as his expert opinion that 75 per cent. of all the crime in the country could have been prevented by giving the boy something helpful and useful to do.

Crowe today appealed for Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller's moral support for his plan to establish a universal system of vocational training.

"Crime results from the environment of youth," said Crowe. "Teach the boy a trade. Educate him in the sciences and arts. Make him produce and pay him for it. His time will be well-spent. He will have little waste time to think of vice and crime."

Crowe wants the national government to appropriate $2,000,000,000 for the establishment of the vocational schools. They would be open to all. This training would help reduce the cost of living, he said. It would insure national preparedness. It would develop the national resources.

Crowe was accompanied to the State House by John T. Campbell and Michael A. Hickey, who are interested in the movement in this State.

TURKISH ISSUE ONE CAUSE OF WORLD WAR

Baron Korff, at Institute of Politics, Says Russia Feared German Control

By Associated Press

Williamstown, Aug. 17.—Nervousness in Russia as well as in Germany over the ultimate control of Constantinople did much to precipitate the World War, said Baron Sergius A. Korff, former Deputy Governor General of Finland and professor of law at Helsingfors University, in a lecture on "Russia's relations with the Balkans and Turkey" at the Institute of Politics here today.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that the events of 1914 which led to the great war were in no mean degree hastened by the nervous desire of Germany to asert her final influence in Constantinople while the Young Turks had still a predominant influenie there. Germany could not have stood the ihance of a second defeat and overthrow of the Young Turks.

"Germany was not alone in a nervous state during those two eventful years 1913 and 1914. Russia was also getting nervous and restless. With great anxiety did she watch the renewal of German influence at Constantinople after the peace of Bucharest and she looked at these developments as a direct threat to herself.

Indeed, Germany firmly entrenched on the Bosphorus meant a national danger to her. Germany would thus be able to control the entire southern export trade of Russia, as well as her relations with all southern powers.

"The war came, and almost at once Turkey took sides with Germany, perfectly convinced of the invincibility of Germany. The allies, on their part, were very reluctant to make any promises of definite arrangements concerning the fate of Turkey. Toward the end of 1915, in a secret treaty, they agreed, however, to promise Russia Constantinople and the control of the straits. Later the allies started to curtail their imperialistic aims by denying any Russian claim of the straits. This was consequently dropped, and when the peace with Turkey was being signed Russia was conspicuously absent."

Newport, R. I., Aug. 17.—Miss Julia Estelle French, divorced wife of Jack Geraghty, and Howard T. Williams of Boston will be married this afternoon by the Rev. Hugh M. Carpenter of Providence.

The Providence clergyman's services were obtained as a result of the hostility of local pastors toward the match because Miss French was a divorced woman.

Dr. Shelley B. Osborne of Boston will be Mr. Williams' best man, while Stuyvesant Le Roy French, brother of the bride, will give her away.

The marriage will take place in a floral bower, and will be in marked contrast to the union of Miss French and geraghty, following their runaway match while Geraghty was the French chauffeur.

Guests invited include Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Grinnell, Shafter Howard, Mrs. Frances Harris, Mrs. William R. Morgan, Miss Augusta Hunter, Mrs. Shaw-Safe, Mrs. Charles M. Oelrichs, Mrs. Thomas P. Williams, mother of the bridegroom; Drexel Biddle, Craig Biddle and Mr. and Mrs. Donald McRaem.

Miss French will wear a gown of soft gray tricolette with silk stockings and shoes to match. Her traveling costume is a tailored affair of dark blue, with a picture hat of the same color.

The French family today exhibited some feeling over the prevailing tendency to refer to the bride as Mrs. Geraghty. She was granted permission to resume her maiden name when she won a divorce.

CHARGED WITH FORGING $800 POSTAL NOTE

Norwood Man Held for Collecting Savings of Boarder

Charged with forging the signature of Michael Margonis, a boarder, to Postal Savings Bank certificates for $800, Benedict Stasaitis of Norwood was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes today, pleaded not guilty and was held in $500 for hearing August 30.

According to Postoffice Inspector Plath, who worked up the case against Stasaitis, the prisoner made use of his fourteen-year-old daughter to aid him in geting the money.

Margonis, said Plath, had deposited the money with the Norwood postoffice bank and left the certificates with Mrs. Stasaitis while he went to the Maine woods to work as a lumberman. After he had gone, says the postoffice inspector, Stasaitis, accompanied by his daughter, who had gone to the bank with Margonis, went back, presented the certificates to Frederick M. Adelmon, postal clerk, signed them with Margonis' signature and went off with the money.

FEARS BLOCKADE PRECIPITATED RED FAMINE

Louise Bryant Analyzes Causes of Present Calamity in Russia

By LOUISE BRYANT

Copyright, 1921, by Universal Service

The Russian famine was inevitable and only those entirely uninformed were surprised when it came. The Soviet nation, blockaded by the whole world, just managed to feed its population, but the government always knew that any calamity like a drought would completely put the situation beyond control.

About a few months ago I traveled all through the stricken area. Transportation was in a terrible state and railroad men told me that they were obliged to burn wood in engines and that the sparks set fire to the crops and caused all kinds of damage.

Transportation in Russia means more than in any other country. I will explain. Under the Tsars concessions were given for factories around Petrograd, and the coal to run those factories had to be shipped from the Don Basin, which is at the other end of Russia. Because of graft and general mismanagement, all the industries are situated far from the source of fuel. And the food for the cities has also to be carried great distances.

DOUBTS FALL OF LENINE.

Two quite unfounded theories regarding the famine seem to prevail in America. One is that because of it thte government will be overthrown, and the second is that the relief committee will assume power. It takes force to oppose a government, and a lot of hungry people off in one section of the country cannot successfully use force.

As for the power of the relief committee, that would be like saying, during the great war, that the food administration would supplant our government. The only tendency the working of this committee will have is to soften party antagonisms because people who have opposed each other for a long time will be working together in a common cause.

And one thing is certain. Everything possible will be done for the children. Stories about the abandonment of children by parents are untrue. Children are fed first and soldiers next. That is the never varying rule.

I have seen people suffering and dying from cholera and typhus. I have lived and eaten and slept in a typhus ward where men die all night long with nothing to relieve their agony. Everything possible was done, but where there was no proper medicine and no trained nurses and only tired and overworked doctors with peasant girls and women who had no real knowledge of sanitation to assist them, it was not surprising that so many patients died. When nothing more could be done, the peasant girls went to the chapel and burned candles for the souls of the dying.

WAS HAUNTING HORROR

To an American, used to our efficient and highly scientific institutions, such an experience is a horror and a nightmare, but to the Russians it is not strange. Especially is this true of the peasant because they have never known any life that was so much better.

And if we face all the facts concerning the blockade we must admit we are in part responsible for this calamity. A blockade must have the same purpose that an army has in besieging a city. That purpose it to starve those inside into submission. The very real menace to us and to Europe if the famine goes on and cholera spreads is that it may creep beyond the borders of Russia as influenza crept around the world.

Any relief that will be effective will have to be on an enormous scale and of long duration. The hay was so scarce this year that the peasants slaughtered their stock in the famine area. They will have barely enough grain for seeding. We will have to be prepared to feed ten million people until the next harvest to be gathered.

LOSS OF HOME THREATENS FAMILY OF SLAIN POLICEMAN CUNEO

FUND NOW HAS TOTAL OF $2,682

lapse as she followed the coffin from St. Anne's Catholic Church, Neponset, where the high mass of requiem had been celebrated.

She was accompanied by her two eldest sons, who had to support her every step. Her face was white and contorted by grief.

NERVES SNAPPED.

At the grave she seemed to be bearing up well until one of her sisters-in-law broke down and began weeping hysterically. Then came the sound of earth falling on the coffin and her nerves snapped.

In accordance with the ancient Italian custom, a eulogy was pronounced at the graveside. Cuneo's friends had asked former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald to make it. The former Mayor declared that Cuneo "represented the very highest and best type of loyal American citizenship."

"His loyalty to duty," said the ex-Mayor, "has been recognized by the Mayor of the city he served, the Senator of the State and even the Vice-President of the country.

"Cuneo was a good man, a loving husband and father, a loyal citizen of this country, his adopted home, and a faithful and efficient police officer. He taught to every one of us a lesson in loyalty to duty.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

"His widow, weeping, asked me how she was going to care for and rear her many children. I told her that with the help of God and the financial support of the people of Boston, for whose protection her husband had perished, that she need not worry. I know that the people of Boston will do their duty to Cuneo's family even as he did his to theirs."

Seldom has a more impressive funeral service than the one over the body of Patrolman Cuneo today been seen in Boston. Shortly before 9 o'clock a detachment of forty-eight patrolmen, commanded by Captain Patrick F. King, all from the Hanover street station, gathered at Neponset avenue and Victory road, Dorchester, and moved to the Cuneo home, where the coffin was waiting.

As the coffin appeared every white-gloved hand snapped to salute of the dead.

There was no music as the procession left the house on the march to the church, but the steady tramp, tramp of the marching feet and the silence of the usually noisy neighborhood was the requiem of the man who had gone to his death doing his duty.

At the church the phalanx of blue-coated policemen again lined up and as the coffin was carried inside, once more the white-gloved hands went up in silent salute.

Mrs. Cuneo, the widow, supported by two of her nearly-grown sons, followed immediately behind the casket with its six uniformed pallbearers.

Just behind her came four other of the dead man's nine children, the three youngest, having been left at home.

After the funeral party had taken their places in the church the Rev. Patrick J. Scannell, assistant pastor, began the mass. The soloists were Miss Sara Lynch and Mrs. Margaret Connors.

COMRADES PALLBEARERS.

The pallbearers were Thomas J. Cavanaugh, Fred H. Corfer, Ephraim Kennedy, Joseph Glancy, Michael Fitzgerald and Cornelius Brennan.

Without exception they were all old friends of Cuneo's, having served on the force with him for years. They are also, as was the slain officer, members of the old police force who refused to go on strike.

In the church were many prominent men, including former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, a representative of the Mayor, who had expected to be present, but was detained, and several prominent police officials.

Among the other members of the funeral party were three brothers and three sisters of the slain officer, Benjamin, Joseph and Louis and Mrs. Oriola, Mrs. Maggi and Mrs. Negro. Captains Arthur B. McConnell of Cuneo's division, Thomas F. Good of the Back Bay Station, Richard Fitzgerald of the Joy Street Station and Herbert W. Goodwin of the Fields Corner Station, Lieutenants J. F. Hurley and J. S. Ridlon and Sergeants Corcoran, McKinnon, Shorey and Sullivan.

Allen R. Fredericks and Andrew A. Badaracco, members of the Cuneo Fund Committee, also were present.

Three automobile loads of flowers, including a great floral wreath from the Hanover Street Station were sent by admirers of the policeman's heroism.

Burial was in St. Michael's cemetery, Roslindale.

After the services Representative George Costanza, who represents the ward in which Cuneo lived, announced that as soon as the Legislature meets he will introduce an order providing for an increase in the $600 annuity awarded Mrs. Cuneo by the city to $1,200.

"Even if the Boston American Cuneo Fund succeeds in raising $20,000 every cent of it will be needed to feed, clothe and educate the nine children of the man who gave his life for decency and law," said Costanza.

"The additional annuity I am going to ask for will help to keep the wolf from the Cuneo home as long as the widow lives."

HELPING TO GIVE CUNEO'S 9 CHILDREN A CHANCE

QUICK TO ANSWER APPEAL

The woman in this group is Gilda Varesi, star of "Enter Madame." She has contributed $25 to the fund for Patrolman Cuneo's family. In circle above is Frank W. Stearns, who, with Mrs. Stearns, subscribed $100. Below at left is Michael H. Crowley, superintendent of Boston police, who has indorsed the Boston American's fund, and donated $25 personally. At right, below, Ex-Governor Samuel W. McCall, who was one of the first to support the more to provide for the bereft family.

Cuneo Family May Lose Their Home

The Boston American Cuneo Fund for the relief of the widow and nine children of Patrolman Andrew B. Cuneo, who was shot to death while performing his duty, was swelled today to $2,682.50, an increase of $683.50 over yesterday.

Contributions are hourly increasing, but they cannot be too large or too numerous for the great and pressing need of the stricken family. A fund is required sufficiently large to pay off the balance still due on the little frame dwelling at No. 46 Evergreen street, Dorchester, into which the policeman, the only bread-winner in the household, had been putting every dollar that could be spared from his meagre salary as patrolman.

Not only is it aimed to purchase the house for the widow and her little ones, but to secure enough money to provide the family with food and fuel and clothing and an income until the younger children grow up and become self-supporting. With the oldest a lad of nineteen and the youngest an infant in arms, the grief-stricken mother is confronted with obstacles too great to overcome unless a generous public comes to her aid.

WIDOW GRATEFUL.

When Patrolman Cuneo was laid at rest today in the family lot the tremendous loss became more apparent than ever. The one comfort felt by the widow was in the sympathy manifested by those who have already subscribed. In spite of her grief, Mrs. Cuneo found solace in the thought that her husband's sacrifice has been recognized. She said today that this realization was better than gold—the knowledge that he had not died in vain.

The task of rearing a family of nine in these times requires no argument. Parents with one or two children realize Mrs. Cuneo's problem. They should remember when reflecting on it that Patrolman Cuneo did not think of himself or his children when ordered to disarm a crazed man who menaced the public. That is where the degree of reciprocation on the part of the general public enters and it is on that ground and in a spirit of humanitarianism that the Boston American makes its appeal.

The Andrew B. Cuneo Fund Committee, which is headed by Police Commissioner Curtis, and which is working in conjunction with the Boston American, issued a circular today appealing for funds for the Cuneo family. It points out that Cuneo served the city faithfully for fifteen years and was killed in the execution of his duty, and adds that what little Cuneo had been able to save was being used to buy the little house in which the family lived.

These circulars are to be issued to all the large firms and establishments. Collections were brisk in the various police divisions today. Men, women and children left their mites with police captains. The dollar and fifty-cent donations were eloquent in their sincerity. Many were given in the name, "A friend."

APPEAL BY CUNEO FUND COMMITTEE FOR AID

The Andrew B. Cuneo committee, headed by Police Commissioner Curtis, in co-operation with the Boston American, today issued an appeal for funds for the Cuneo family. The circular reads:

"On Saturday, August 13, 1921, at 12:15 p. m., Patrolman Andrew B. Cuneo of the Hanover street station was shot and killed while in the performance of his duty.

"Patrolman Cuneo had served the city of Boston faithfully and with an unblemished record for fifteen years. He was a loyal and efficient officer, a good citizen and a kind and loving husband and father. He leaves a wife and nine children, three girls and six boys, ranging in age from one to nineteen years. This family is left practically penniless, as what little he could save was being used to pay for the small house in which they lived so happily.

"We, the undersigned, ask the citizens of Boston to contribute to a fund which will be used to make proper provision for the support of the wife and children of this brave patrolman, who laid down his life for the protection of these citizens, feeling sure that they will be only too glad to avail themselves of the opportunity to thus show their appreciation of his fearless act.

"All contributions should be sent to the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass., which gives assurances that when the desired amount has been received, it will be placed in the hands of responsible parties who will properly safeguard it for the use of Patrolman Cuneo's wife and children.

Police Commissioner,

CRUELTIES TO IRISH CAPTIVES DESCRIBED

Connolly Tells of Barbarous Treatment of Sinn Fein Prisoners by Black and Tans

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY
Famous New England Author and Journalist.

In the morning the men might, as they frequently did, strip naked again and made to hurdle over broom handles or rifle barrels around the prison yard; when they did not move fast enough they were beaten with broom handles or prodded with the rifle butts, and there would be more "bawths" and more scrubbing of the bare skin with the stiff brushes.

As a variation to this, they would smash men in the mouth with their fists, sometimes "drive their teeth bloody well down their bloody throats" with the butts of their rifles. Yeo liked to beat up men himself, although he never tried it unless guarded by at least four armed men. Once he got a fine pummeling from a man-handled I. R. A. man before his armed guard could save him.

Be sure the prisoner paid for that after they had him secure again. Yeo or perhaps Lieutenant Anderson—Yeo had enough on his head—it was Lieutenant Anderson who made prisoners sing doggerel written by his men, crude stuff, burlesquing Sinn Fein ideals, or exalting the Crown government. Prisoners who refused to sing were beaten.

Yeo liked to order prisoners to be made to stand erect and with hands held rigidly high over their heads, and in that position walk a good distance up the street, for a quarter of a mile say. If the prisoner's arms sagged ever so little he was prodded with bayonets.

SCHOOL PUT TO TORCH.

I was in a friend's office in Dublin the day when an Enniscorthy boy of sixteen years came in to make oath to the walk he had to take with his hands held high over his head. He had to walk a quarter of a mile and any time his arms sagged they jabbed their bayonets into his arm pits.

There were witnesses to that quarter mile walk. The best witness was his shirt. When that boy ended his walk his shirt was running with blood.

Such things cannot be! But they have been, and they may be again. After his "walk" they took that boy, gave him "the bawth" and scrubbed him with the rough hard brushes till the blood came through his skin.

In Kilmyshal, in the Enniscorthy barracks district, a Miss Boyle and her niece, Miss Cuffe, had a school for young children who were taught to speak Irish from the beginning. Four of the fourteen pupils, the oldest seven years of age, also boarded at the school.

One night last Winter men from the Enniscorthy Barracks set the school on fire. There was no warning and inside, the children, Miss Boyle and Miss Cuffe were asleep. There was no man around the place, and Miss Boyle had to hurry to save Miss Cuffe, who was a cripple, and the four babies boarding with her. They were all in their night clothes; the school was in a lonely country district. The men who burned the place made no attempt to help Miss Boyle bring the little infants from the burning building. The school was Miss Boyle's only property.

Some of these men—not Yeo's men this time—once took a prisoner they had in a lorry, forced his jaws open, stuck a bayonet into his mouth as far as it would go, and there held it while the lorry was going 25 miles an hour over a rough road.

TORTURE AND TERROR.

Would you believe that human beings would take other human beings, their prisoners, tie ten or twelve of them together, each prisoner with a rope around his neck, and then force them all to trot behind a running lorry? The "Gentlemen" of the Galway barracks were proud of that invention.

Would you believe that a band of Black and Tans, meeting a young Irish couple walking on the road, would strip the young fellow naked, handcuff him to the young woman—a pure, modest young woman—and force the pair to walk into town so?

Hundreds of devices for torturing and terrorizing were their proud inventions. The details of the worst of them are unprintable, unless, it might be, in the pages of some medical journal. Let us say that no sane creatures, as the tolerant Irish put it, could be guilty of them, and let it go at that; but what of the high administrators who cold-bloodedly recruited such creatures for such work? What would be the matter with indicting and shooting a few of them?

Now I am pretty nearly done, having left seventeen volumes or so untold, of the doings of the Black and Tans in Ireland. But when next you read in the British-controlled cables that the cowardly Irish have killed another policeman, do not too quickly conjure an image of a patient traffic cop or the good-natured patrolman who strolls along of an evening swinging hisstcik and trying the shop doors over here, and say: "What a pity! And how cruel!"

A policeman in Ireland means a Black and Tan; so save your pity.

A SLIM little afternoon gown of canard blue Roshanara crepe, sketched at the right, combines the maximum of grace with the minimum of detail. There is a good deal of a slip of white crepe to be seen down the front, while the charm of a little bow of the white crepe at the waistline is its only excuse for being.

THE violine shades that have sprung into prominence since the Bal du Grand Prix suggested rose-mauve taffeta as the tissue of a gown embodying several features of the Autumn mode, notably the long gradually widening sleeves and the fulness and length of its skirt. French blue flat porcelain beads trim the bodice, sleeves and skirt, and French blue taffeta is used for a girdle finished with a matching rose at the side-front.

'ENTER MADAME' TRIUMPHS AT PARK SQUARE

Gilda Varesi Succeeds Both as Playright and Actress in Her Own Work

By FRED J. McISAAC
Dramatic Editor.

If you stop to think of it at all, there are never more than two or three plays in a season that you can recall the next year. The rest of them make just as much permanent impression as a raindrop on the sea.

To get one of these permanent impressions at the very start of the year is remarkable luck and that is the status of "Enter Madame," a comedy by Gilda Varesi and Dolly Byrne, which is playing at the Park Square Theatre.

Gilda Varesi, one of the authors of the piece, is also the star, a very intelligent woman of middle age who has created in "Enter Madame" one of the most picturesque and bewitching characters ever set upon the boards.

Varesi has been known on the American stage for several seasons as a talented actress. She has earned her stardom and holds it by divine right.

The play is one of those rare offerings which will get encomiums from the Drama League and please people who buy theatre tickets. It is smart and human, scintillating and sincere—at once extravagant and without exaggeration.

Gilda Varesi plays an opera singer who has been grossly neglecting her husband. She remembers him occasionally and swoops down upon him accompanied by the entourage of a great artist, the secretary, the physician, the maid and the cook.

The husband is a wealthy American who has begun to grow sick of her selfishness, her extravagances, her willingness to do without him for long periods, and having met a sympathetic blonde widow he lets the prima donna know that he proposes to get a divorce.

Enter Madame. She won't give up this husband to any other woman. She lays siege to him and in the course of three remarkable acts she recaptures him, and binds him again to her chariot, or to be exact makes him carry her dog.

People who do not know the Italian opera singer off the boards may imagine some of the situations in this comedy far-fetched. But the better you know the musical Italian the more you are amazed at the truthfulness of the stage pictures.

Thus the dinner, which begins most formally and which breaks up in an impromptu concert in which the cook who plays the flute, the doctor who plays the piano, the maid who sings, mingle with the guests in a grand musical ensemble, while excruciatingly funny, isn't overdrawn a bit.

Almost as wonderful as the brilliant acting of Varesi is the performance by Henry Stephenson of the good-natured American husband. And the work of Gavin Muir as the sober son who is ashamed of his Bohemian parents, of Michelette Burani as the maid, of Frederick Verdi as the Italian doctor, of William Hallman as the cook and Jane Meridith as the blonde vampire is all to be commended.

A play like this is a rare visitor. Such a characterization as Varesi's you won't see once in a decade. So don't miss it.

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS

WITH another announcement to the effect that Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks will be on hand for the opening of "The Three Musketeers" when New York sees it, comes word that they are making plans for a big special picture in which they will co-star.

Mary Pickford is working night and day in order to have "Little Lord Fauntleroy" finished that she may make the trip East next week. After a short visit here they will return to the coast while Fairbanks makes "The Virginian." When that film is ready for distribution, they will go abroad for several months' vacation, and will forget that they ever knew the meaning of the word "movie."

It will be on their return from Europe that they will start work on their feature together. Fans have often wished they could see the Fairbankses playing together, but no one has thought seriously of the plan. It will, undoubtedly, be a colossal success from a box-office point of view.

NAZIMOVA COMING.

WHEN Madame Nazimova comes to New York from Hollywood in a few weeks she will bring with her a print of "Camille," her last Metro feature. Since she returned to the West coast Nazimova has been cutting and editing this film, which will be one of the most spectacular pictures she has made. Rudolph Valentino, the "Julio Desnoyer" of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," appears opposite her as Armand Duval.

The Russian actress' visit in New York will decide what her future plans will be. There are two possibilities; she may return to the speaking stage in an Ibsen and Hauptmann repertoire; or she may make independent film productions to be released through United Artists, as Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin and David Wark Griffith are doing.

Rubye de Remer at the Park

Some artist or other, I think it was Paul Helleu, declared that Rubye de Remer is "the most beautiful blonde in America." There can be little question about it. Since her debut in films some years ago she has stood out from among the majority of players for her extreme charm. In fact, she frequently distracts the attention from the story. As for her acting, that's something else again!

She is starring at the Park Theatre this week in "The Way Women Love," adapted from the novel by Herman Landon, "Behind the Green Portieres." "The Way Women Love" seems to be without rhyme or reason, according to this picture. Judith Renyard discovers the body of a man in her fiance's library, accuses him of the murder and returns his ring. When, immediately after, a detective comes in and also accuses Ralph Barr of the murder, Judith stands up for him, declares she'll love him always, and takes back the ring.

The idea of the story is to find out who really killed Train. Judith finds his revolver and, in an effort to clear Barr, fires a shot from it into a supposedly empty closet. As a matter of fact the real murderer is hiding in the closet and she wounds him. Eventually, of course, everything is cleared up.

Miss De Remer plays the pleasingly illogical Judith. She has little to do but stand about or follow the detectives. And she does it beautifully. The only difficulty is that she doesn't attempt to portray a part of feelings or emotions. She is simply an automaton. Hate and fear are all the same to Miss Remer. They are registered with lifted eyebrows and a smiling look. But, after all, she is so lovely that no one minds.

BESSIE EYTON, without whom few pictures were complete a few years ago, is another to try the footlights. She will play an important role in a new Morosco play to be tried out in Los Angeles, "Happiness."

SEENA OWEN DRAWS PLUM.

COSMOPOLITAN was apparently so pleased with Seena Owen's work in "The Woman God Changed," and "Back Pay," that they have given her the lead in their screen adaption of Kathleen Norris' novel, "Sisters." Work has already started on this production.

HUNDREDS FLEE FROM MILLION DOLLAR FIRE

Entire Block of Buildings in Brooklyn Razed by Flames

New York, Aug. 17.—Damage estimated at a million dollars was caused by a fire that destroyed a square block of buildings at the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn early today.

The point at which the blaze started is not far from the Greenpoint plant of the Standard Oil Company. A short distance off are a group of big gas tanks, and for some time it was feared that the conflagration would spread to these danger bones.

The neighborhood is one of frame dwelling houses and wooden industrial plants, and as soon as the serious nature of the fire was seen the police began ordering residents from their homes. Hundreds fled to the street in their nightclothes and watched the firemen at work.

The cause of the conflagration has not yet been determined.

To Reappoint Madden

Holyoke Aug. 17.—The Rt. Rev. Mgr J. T. Madden, rector of St. Jerome's church, will be reappointed vicar-general, according to assurances from Bishop-elect Thomas M. O'Leary of the western Massachusetts diocese.

SONG TITLE TEST COMES TO A CLOSE FRIDAY

Participants in the Boston American's $6,000 Song Title Test, who yesterday were presented with an additional copy of Test Picture No. 41, are advised that the Correct Title of that picture appeared in the List of Titles printed with the picture originally on July 26.

The Song Title Test comes to a close on Friday with the printing of Test Picture No. 62. Parcels of Test Pictures, each with a title written below it, must be in the mails not later than next Monday midnight.

Each parcel should consist of 60 Test Pictures and each picture should have a title written beneath it. If you send in fewer than 60 pictures, each missing picture will be counted "incorrect title." If you use a blankbook, and have cut away the coupons, be sure that the title, your name and your address are written below each picture.

TWO PICTURES TODAY.

You will have noticed that, once again, two Test Pictures are printed on this page. One of them is a reprint.

In the original printing of Test Picture No. 33 part of the word "practical" was cut away, so that the word appeared "pract." Fully three hundred participants have written to the Test Editor to ask what this meant, whether it was intentional, whether the Artist was "up to something," etc.

The word was intended to be "practical," exactly as you see it today. It is re-printed in corrected form in order that you may have no doubt about it. The Correct Title of No. 33 was in the List of Titles the day Picture No. 33 was printed originally.

When you mail your parcels of Test Pictures, make sure that they are FULLY PREPAID AT POSTAL LETTER RATES. Every package will contain written or printed matter, or both. This makes them "first class mail." Test Pictures must be mailed as first class mail and the postage must be fully prepaid. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any set of titles on which postal charges have not been fully prepaid.

Only two Test Pictures remain to be printed. No. 61 will appear tomorrow and No. 62 on Friday. Most likely you have selected titles for all the pictures which have appeared up to date and will have all of Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday to decide upon the tail-enders.

READ THE RULES NOW.

The Title Test Editor would suggest that you find time now to read the Rules of the Test. If you read them several weeks ago, please read them again. Every member of the family may send in an individual parcel of Test Pictures, but only one award will be paid to one family. What is meant by "family?" On that point, the Boston American will be glad to follow the dictionary.

The point is that, while there are thousands of participants in the Test, there are only 220 awards. Of these 220 awards, moreover, there are only ten "worth writing home about." So far as the Boston American is able to accomplish it, these awards must go to different families.

Suppose two members of the same family DO finish among the First Ten? It will be a simple matter to suggest that the one who stands second withdraw from the Test in favor of the one who finishes first. Wouldn't YOU be willing to give up a $200 award — for example — in order that your sister, brother, wife, husband or other relative might collect $700?

Persons living in on R. F. D. routes, in little villages with "one train a day," in towns where the mail closes at 5 P. M., or earlier, are advised not to worry about the "Monday night at midnight" order. They will be taken care of. The mail clerks in this office know about conditions everywhere in "Boston American territory." The order is to get your parcel into the mails not later than Monday at midnight.

TILL MIDNIGHT MONDAY.

Residents of Greater Boston may prefer to bring their parcels to the Boston American office, No. 80 Summer street, or send them here by messenger. Clerks will be waiting to receive them in the business office on the street floor until the stroke of 12 on Monday night. Parcels may be brought here, indeed, any time after the appearance of Picture No. 62, on Friday. Until 12 o'clock Monday night. No parcel will be received after midnight of Monday.

The Title Test Editor has no means of knowing how many packages of Test Pictures will be received. As expeditiously as possible, however, your titles will be compared with the List of Correct Titles. Then, possibly five or six weeks from now, the List of Awards will be printed. Meanwhile the Test Pictures will be reprinted, one every day, with their Correct Titles.

It will be all of two weeks, probably, before the checking begins. Your name and address will be written on the outside of your parcel and the first job at Title Test Headquarters will be to make a list of all these names and addresses. Each parcel will be given a number. This number will be written on the parcel and enrolled in the book beside your name and address.

PROCESS OF CHECKING.

When this has been done, Test Pictures will be removed from the wrappers and "cancelled." The cancelling is done by means of a perforating machine. When every set of Test Pictures has been perforated the machine will be taken apart and returned to the Boston American safe. The next step will be to supply the checkers with the Correct Titles. Then the checking will begin. The Correct Titles do not leave this desk, to go to the clerks at Title Test Headquarters, until every parcel of Test Pictures has been cancelled by the perforator and the machine has been taken apart.

The Title Test Editor, realizing that everybody has "worked hard," to keep up with the Test, hopes that no one will throw away his or her chances by failing to use postage enough. Tell the man at the postoffice window that you want to send your parcel as "first class mail," at "letter rates." There is no objection to the registering of parcels, but it is not necessary. In connection with the Movie Player Identity Test and the Movie Play Title Test the Boston American did not have one complaint of a parcel lost in the mails.

Now, find the Correct Title of No. 60—if you can—and be ready for Mr. Next-to-the-Last, tomorrow.

FEARS LACK OF UNDERSTANDING RETARDS JAPAN

Tokio Industrial Leader Doubts Countrymen Are Aware of Death of Intrigue

By Associated Press.

Tokio, Aug. 17.—"It is my belief that the greatest benefits the world will derive from the forthcoming conference in Washington will be of an economic rather than of a diplomatic or political character," declares Sanji Muto, the leading figure in the Japanese spinning industry, who took a prominent part in the movement for armament restriction in this country.

The industrial leader added: "I very much hope that the powers around the conference table will concentrate their attention on achieving economic results.

"The age of so-called 'diplomacy' and of political intrigue has passed and the world is now entering on a new era of mutual co-operation among nations. Like many other countries, Japan has been unconscious of the change in human relationships and of the progress made in the direction of international co-operation.

"It is to her lack of understanding of this co-operative spirit that the mistakes in her policy, especially toward China, have been due."

Muto recommended that China be asked to accept a system of international advisors in exchange for complete tariff autonomy.

LABOR 'OUTLAWS' WOULD TIE UP RAILROADS

Report Revival of Nationwide Drive for "One Big Union"

Washington, Aug. 17.—The "outlaw" railroad workers have become active again.

Under the leadership of John Grunau of Chicago the "outlaw" workers are making preparations to throw transportation into chaos through sporadic strikes and to bring about a nation-wide secession movement from the ranks of the "Big Four" brotherhoods and the American Federation of Labor railroad unions, according to information received here today in official labor circles.

Their goal is said to be one big union movement of all railroad workers. They have sent agitators, according to advices, into railroad districts, particularly in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the Middle West, to stir up the already dissatisfied and restless railroad workers to revolt against the leaders of the unions.

FLAT WORKERS ROB CHILD'S BANK OF $102

Lawrence, Aug. 17.—Modern thieves have no regard for the feelings of children, according to the police. Key workers ransacked the home of Manuel Santos, No. 379 Common street, looting his small daughter's bank and securing all told $102.24.

FIRE CHIEF WARNS OF CLEANING FLUID MENACE

Haverhill, Aug. 17.—Chief John B. Gordon of the fire department has issued a warning to housewives calling attention to the dangerous condition that has arisen from the wide sale of inflammable cleaning liquids for home use. He urges that unscrupulous druggists and dealers are selling a solution of carbon bi-sulphide, which they offer to the public as a safe preperation for removing stains and grease spots from clothing. This chemical is far more explosive than gasolene because of its greater volatility.

READ CAREFULLY SONG TITLE TEST RULES

Following Regulations Govern All Points in Great $6,000 Trial of Skill

The Boston American Songs of the World Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and twenty cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

All employes of the Boston American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The test will consist of 60 pictures, each representing the title of a well-known song, to be printed one each day in the Boston American, the first picture on Wednesday, June 8, 1921.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every title must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American: or on a page of some book form by itself, accompanied either by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your title in "list" form, i. e., do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are not complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solutions, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Song Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 289," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

ENTRY LIST FOR BIG SWIM IS GROWING

Charlie Toth, Who Swam to Light, Will Assist in Boston American Races

The thousands of spectators who will line Charles River Esplanade Saturday afternoon, August 27, to witness the Boston American girls' swimming contest will have an opportunity of seeing one of the world's greatest swimmers—Charlie Toth—the L street bath "brownie," who swam to Boston Light last Saturday against terrific odds.

Mr. Toth is to assist as one of the officials at the Boston American carnival. He will be in the stake boat with "Bob" Carey and "Doc" Crockett (W. E.), who are known to all patrons of the famous L street, South Boston, baths.

THREE EXPERT TIMERS.

Three expert timers will check the winner of the girls' swimming contest, which is open to all young women of New England. They are James L. Walsh, superintendent of baths of the city of Boston; Joe McNamara of Charlesbank Gymnasium, and "Dick" Adler of Brookline.

The swimming editor wishes to repeat that parents need have no fear of permitting their daughters to participate in the swim. Every safeguard possible to protect them will be taken. During all the years that the Boston American has conducted these carnivals there has not been an accident.

There will be plenty of life guards in row boats and swift launches to pick up any swimmers if they become exhausted. Physicians and nurses will be present in case of need. Matrons will have charge of the dressing tent.

Every girl who dives from the Metropolitan Park Commission raft when the pistol shot is fired by "Jack" Lane of Columbia Road Gymnasium will have an equal chance to win.

URGE CONGRESS TO ACT TO AID JOBLESS

Washington Officials See Grave Menace to Nation by Idleness of 5,735,000

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Unemployment has reached such proportions that it constitutes a grave menace to the nation, unless checked before Winter sets in, administration officials said today.

Aroused by a report of Secretary of Labor Davis that there are 5,735,000 unemployed in the United States at this time, Cabinet officials have begun consideration of measures to alleviate this condition.

Congressional action may also be taken with a view to speeding up the economic readjustment which it is believed is essential to the correction of unemployment.

Unemployment is the result of poor national economic management, according to Eugene Meyer, Jr., director of the War Finance Corporation, who stated today that unless the government acts there will be a most serious situation for it to confront next Winter.

Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger today urged immediate steps to alleviate the condition of idleness so widespread in this country.

"As an American citizen, I should feel ashamed to go through next Winter with five million men idle," Director Meyer said.

"There is work for these men in this country if we will only manage our affairs with a reasonable degree of intelligence.

"I am not one of those who believe that unemployment over a long period is necessary to work out certain economic theories. I think unemployment is a thing about which something should be done and can be done."

RICH WOMAN SAVES 'LOST' ALIEN FAMILY FROM STARVATION

HERO HATS! This type of basket-hat is now used extensively in England to advertise the work of blind former service men. Nearly all the fine wicker and basket work is done by maimed heroes. This chap walks about the streets and persons readily buy the wares. (W. W.)

JAP FLASH! Shimidzu, the cleverest racquet wielder that Japan has ever sent to this country, is eager to beat Tilden in the championship matches at Forrest Hills (L. I.) in September. He is now pursuing a vigorous course of training, although he has just recovered from a serious illness. Tilden, on the other hand, is taking a rest. (Int.)

CERTAINEMENT, MA CHERIE! Suzanne is daily besieged at the Forrest Hills tennis courts for her signature and she willingly obliges. Mlle. Lenglen has been known to autograph as many as a hundred albums a day. (K. & H.)

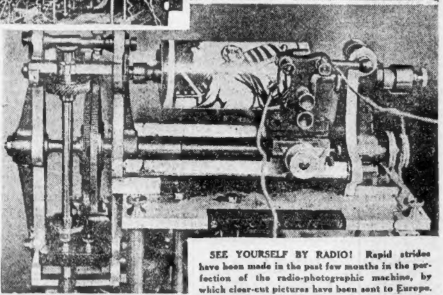
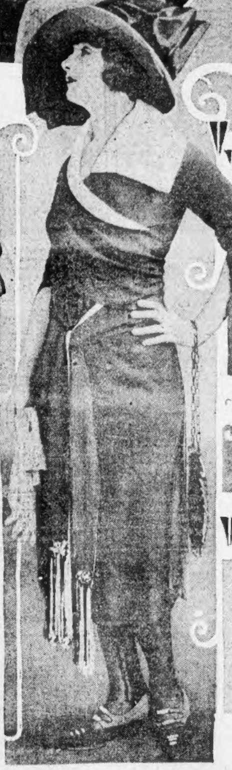
I'M SO COY! In fact, she's so coy that she wins $5 in the Sea Beauty Contest. Lillian Cort of 48 Second st., Chelsea, in a cute pose in a cuter sea suit. Contest closes on Aug. 25. Better get busy, girls, if you want to win a prize. All photographs will be returned. Address Pictorial Editor, Boston American. Only photos of sharp contrast are desirable. Many pictures of pretty bathing girls have been returned because they were dark and unclear. Be patient, all unused pictures will be returned as soon as possible. If the correct address was sent the photo will reach you in good condition.

CHEAP AT THE PRICE! Money is "dirt cheap" on the East Side of New York, where ambitious salesmen sell Russian money at 20 rubles for 5 cents—100 rubles for 15 cents. Is this a good buy or just good-by? This girl customer apparently believes the former is right. (K. & H.)

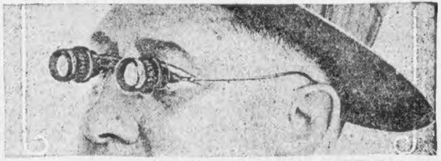
NOW WE'LL SEE! Fans can get a line on how Tom Gibbons will show against Carpentier next January when he crosses mitts with Battling Levinsky next month. The French idol knocked out the big blond in 4 rounds. Can Tom do it? Gibbons (above) trains.



SEE YOURSELF BY RADIO! Rapid strides have been made in the past few months in the perfection of the radio-photographic machine, by which clear-cut pictures have been sent to Europe. Ever since the Dempsey-Carpentier bout, when "cuts" were flashed across the Atlantic, great improvements have been made in the device. The above instrument shows a picture of President Harding making his Plymouth Tercentenary address being reproduced. Above, at left, Gaston Tohanneau and Marcel Touly, French engineers, who are perfecting the device at Washington. (Int.)



LANGUID GRACE! A popular advance fashion for the Fall. This charming afternoon frock is fashioned of black Canton crepe, with white Canton crepe collar continuing around the waist and ending in a chic betasseled sash. Picture hat of same material completes outfit. Model is Betty Blythe. (W. W.)



LET'S GET FOCUSED! Getting your auto lenses focused is just as easy as making out an income tax blank. These new field glasses look and act like ordinary eye glasses. Focus easily and the hands never tire. (K.)

Unable to carry on her social activities and rebelling at enforced idleness, Lady Hope, widow of late admiral of English fleet, seeks contracts for interior decorating.

THOSE YANKS! Le Bon Georges, now in training for forthcoming mill with some French wonder, yet to be selected, is followed by hard luck. Went out to the Grand Prix auto race to extend best wishes to French entries. Didn't do any good, however, as Jimmy Murphy, an American, won the race. (Int.)

LADY BOUNTIFUL! A near tragedy was prevented by this modern Lady Bountiful, Mrs. Florita Rogovoy of N. Y., on the left, picked up a mother and her starving brood from the streets and gave them a comfortable home with her. The Italian woman visited a relative and lost her way. (Int.)

MRS. PETER COOPER HEWITT of N. Y. and Newport, will not leave hubby. To dispel divorce talk, both have left for Deauville,

A WHIFFER SKIFF! Floating down the stream in a safe "canoe." Isn't that the way the song goes? Anyway, Miss Irene Webster isn't afraid of getting her shoes—or her collar, for that matter—wet, 'cause she's in a new non-sinkable suit. The pipe? Oh, that's a new fad among Washington (D. C.) girls. Photo was snapped on the famous Potomac River. (W. W.)

TESTING ROD TO CHOOSE IDEAL HUSBAND

Chicago Women Outline Specifications for Girls to Pick Suitable Mates

Chicago, Aug. 17.—A testing rod was applied to the mythical ideal husband here today.

Chicago women who are interested in the happiness of prospective brides outlined the specifications that girls should follow in picking a mate.

The ideal husband does not have to be a perfect man, they agree, but he must come up to a certain notch on the testing rod.

"First of all, a girl should marry a man who has a definite object in life, and who is willing to devote himself to the attainment of that object," said Miss Harriett Vittum, social worker.

"The ideal husband must show respect for all women and must live a clean life. If in addition to this the girl loves him, her happiness is assured."

Miss Lulu Gordon, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., also said the ideal man must have ambition and perseverance.

"In addition, he must be a good moral character," she said. "He must possess a sense of humor and know how to play as well as to work; he must be able to see another viewpoint and must be adaptable."

Another desirable attribute in the ideal husband is pliability, in the opinion of Mrs. Theresa D. Headley, member of the Women's City Club.

"There is no great difference in what a girl should ask of a man and what a man should ask of a girl," she said. "They are partners in marriage, and both must make the home. Both must be pliable. A man should be as responsive to his wife's wishes as he is to his own."

The measuring rod was applied to man today after Rev. Charles S. Stevens preached a sermon on "How to Choose a Mate."

"Looks do not count in the ideal girl," he said, "for looks do not last. The ideal wife must be womanly, attractive and above all intelligent."

The pastor did not say what the man should do, but what he should not do. In his opinion, the ideal man must not swear, must not be lazy and must not wear a grouch.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR PEACE IN IRELAND

Hapgood Says Situation Is Not as Bad as Reports Would Indicate

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The outlook for peace in Ireland is not as bad, I think, as a mere reading of the documents made public this week might lead us to conclude.

In the midst of a civil war, following seven centuries of trouble, the ironing out of difficulties, when it comes to pass, could scarcely be expected to be concluded without many delays, counter-proposals and discouragements.

The latest documents at least show progress. They enable us more clearly to disentangle what important things have been agreed upon from the important things that are still at issue.

The Dail Eireann is meeting in Dublin. Far reaching consequences, of course, will follow from the mood of its members. They will inevitably be disappointed and angered by some of the things said by Lloyd George, in behalf of the empire, and by Sir James Craig, in behalf of Ulster.

CANNOT HELP MAKING GAIN.

But on the other hand they have every reason to be encouraged with the position in which negotiations now are. While the armistice is on, and while fundamental conditions are being calmly and fully discussed, the Irish cause cannot help making ceaseless gains.

This situation, of peaceable discussion after civil war, has the immeasurably important effect of waking up the liberal element in England, enabling them to hear all sides, increasing their distrust of the present cabinet and the present parliament.

If the situation in England were normal the cabinet would have fallen long ago on account of the fiasco it has made of its attempt to deal with Ireland. Britain, like most of the victorious countries in the late war, has suffered morally and intellectually from her victory.

One result is to leave her with the most incompetent and least representative parliament she has had in modern times, a parliament composed largely of the type of men who will support the government, in order to hold their offices, no matter how incompetently or wickedly the government may behave.

ENGLAND WAKES UP.

Even on such an inferior parliament, however, public opinion, if active, can make itself felt. The more liberal opinion in England had been largely quiescent about Ireland, through ignorance and through fears increased by the ready lies of the Prime Minister and his agents. It is now having a chance to wake up.

De Valera has admitted a significant principle when he concedes that force is not the right answer of South Ireland to Ulster. That admission is one of the points at which quiet pressure may yet lead a long way.

Lloyd George will have to concede much more than he has conceded yet. His talk about economics is pretty nearly imbecile. It is kept from being imbecile only by being completely insincere. When he tries to scare England with the pictures of an Ireland flourishing in successful competition because of low taxes, at the same time that her small population keeps up a big navy and the largest army proportionately in the world, he knows as well as any one else that he is talking nonsense. But nonsense is one of his weapons.

In the economic field he will have to yield everything, except some trifling arrangement about the national debt. In regard to such aspects of national safety as aviation, for instance, there is still room for good trading, as there is in the relations between Ulster and Great Britain.

Among the men whom I know personally in Ireland the most brilliant is George Russell, famous everywhere as "A. E." In the September issue of Pearson's Magazine "A. E." has a characteristic article putting the whole controversy on a high level.

MUST DECIDE FOR SELF.

From his admirable and sometimes beautiful essay there emerges at the end the same point that is put first in importance in De Valera's last statement. Ireland must decide for herself. She cannot admit that she is subject to coercion.

Russell thus sums it up: "I am afraid Great Britain is not at present governed by gentlemen. To men with fine feelings and ideas it should be loathsome to coerce an unwilling people into their Commonwealth.

But even now, if Great Britain could be ruled by the spirit, if it allowed Ireland the freedom it struggles for with such desperation, Ireland would forgive its long martyrdom of many centuries, the death of its noblest children, the breaking up of its laws, the ruin of its industries, the destruction of its culture, the long defeat of its dreams.

"It would forgive because it would realize that in allowing Irish freedom Great Britain had found its own soul. We could not hate even a devil if he began to act like a god."

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS OF GREATER BOSTON

Rummage Sale of Traveler's Aid Society Today

Mrs. Charles Cobb Walker (Helene Whitehouse) of Arlington street and "Highwood," West Manchester. It was last Fall, at Mount Kisco, N. Y., that Mrs. Walker became the bride of Charles Walker, who has holdings in all the exclusive clubs of Boston and the North Shore.

By BETTY ALDEN

Mrs. Russell S. Codman of Marlboro street and Manchester is in charge of the rummage sale being held today from 10 to 6 o'clock for the benefit of the Travelers' Aid Society, of which she is one of the directors. Mrs. William H. Coolidge and Mrs. Edwin S. Webster are members of the board of the organization, of which James A. Lowell is president and John L. Grandin treasurer.

Mrs. Codman has very recently returned to her Summer cottage at Smith's Point, Manchester, from a trip to Ridgefield, Ct., to attend the wedding of her sister, Clemente Crafts and James Colburn. The bride was given away by Mrs. Codman's husband. Another marriage in the Codman family was that of their son, Charles R. Codman, to Theodora LaRoque, which took place in New York last Winter. The young couple, who were recently house guests of the Russell Codmans, may take a cottage at the shore for the remainder of the season, though at present they are remaining in town.

For the various "sub-debs" Summering at the North Shore, Wednesday is the day of days, as every Wednesday evening during late July and August a dance is held for their particular benefit. These terpsichorean affairs, which have been introduced by Mr. and Mrs. John Rousmaniere, are held on the estate of the Herbert Masons, Tanglewood Farm, Ipswich. Among the buds of the coming season for whom these dances are being given especially are the Misses Theodora and Anne Ayer, Mary Rousmaniere, Sally Robbins and Eleanor Mason.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Allen, of Fairfield street, will arrive this week from Europe and visit Mrs. Frederick F. Thompson in Canndagua, N. Y.

Mrs. Everett Morss, of Commonwealth avenue, is staying at the Greylock Hotel, Williamstown, with her mother, Mrs. Guilford Shaw Reed and Miss Helen Leas Reed. Mrs. Morss' son, Everett, Jr., recently sailed for abroad, planning to return to this country about the first of October.

Boston society was represented by Mr. and Mrs. William Wirt Warren at the reception given by Stephen Panaretoff, Bulgarian Minister at Washington, and Mrs. Panaretoff at their villa in Williamstown, complimentary to Viscount James Bryce and Lady Bryce. Though there has been no end of interesting entertaining at Williamstown in connection with the meeting of the Institute of Politics, the reception held by the Panaretoffs was especially distinctive and the list of guests who attended lent the affair particular eclat. Some of the best known guests were Count and Countess Laszlo Szechenyi (Gladys Vanderbilt), Baron and Baroness Sergius A. Koriff, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Augustus Garfield and Dr. and Mrs. Vanderpoel Adriance.

That Mrs. Vincent Astor is to don the role of umpire next Saturday afternoon for the baseball game at Freebody Park, Newport, between the Summer colony and city officials teams, will, of course, tend to act as an irresistible magnet for ardent fans and non-fans alike. Those who witnessed last year's diamond battle will remember that the charming Mrs. Astor was umpire then. Though the baseball games is but one of the many attractions for the huge out-door entertainment for a three-fold benefit, it is by no means the least important one. If I am not mistaken, the committee in charge has one of its most powerful drawing cards in the person of Mrs. Astor as "ump."

Mrs. Amos Lawrence Hopkins, of Commonwealth avenue, who is Summering in the Berkshires, has as her guest at Williamstown Miss Helen Ramsay, also of Boston.

The Vice-President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who gave up their apartment at the New Willard Hotel when they went North, will not return to the Capital before the proposed recess of Congress.

A. A. R. I. R. OFFICER SUES AFTER EJECTMENT

As the result of an alleged ejectment from Russell Field, Cambridge, August 6 last, when Miss Mary MacSwiney was to speak, Thomas Nolan, state secretary of the A. A. R. I. R., has brought suit for $20,000 against James Culhane of Mellon street, Cambridge.

Nolan claims that Culhane, who was in charge of the grounds for the Irish White Cross, which was giving a reception to Miss MacSwiney, ejected him although he had been invited to serve on the reception committee. The petitioner said Culhane placed hands on him and assisted him from the field, and that Nolan suffered great humiliation and anguish of mind as a result.

BRIAND TO BARE AIMS OF FRANCE TO WASHINGTON

Paris, Aug. 17.—Premier Briand, who expects to attend the conference on disarmament at Washington this Autumn, will not seek to confine the discussions to the single question of disarmament, it is stated here in well-informed quarters.

It is declared M. Briand considers the occasion favorable for the consideration of many great international problems, and that he will take occasion to expound to America the legitimate aims of France throughout the world.

TWO WOMEN IDENTIFY PRIEST'S DEATH SUSPECT

Redwood City, Cal., Aug. 17.—William Hightower, charged with the murder of Father Patrick E. Meslin, kidnaped Colma priest, was positively identified here by Miss Marie Mendel, housekeeper for Father Meslin, as the man who called for the priest on the night of August 2 and persuaded him to go on a mission of mercy which ended in his death. Mrs. Bianchi, a neighbor, also identified Hightower as the man.

APPROVES PUBLICITY IN ALL DIVORCE CASES

New York, Aug. 17.—Publicity in divorce suits hereafter has been approved by the Supreme Court justices of the Ninth District, comprising the counties of Westchester, Putnam, Dutchess, Orange and Rockland.

Announcement was made today that they had decided not to order papers sealed in divorce cases referred to a referee, as was done in the Stillman case. Trials before justices themselves will be in open court instead of in chambers.

GRADY CAMP TO HOLD BLOCK PARTY

A block party under the auspices of Major Grady Camp, Spanish War Veterans, and its auxiliary, will be held Friday and Saturday evenings in Thomas J. Giblin square, Orient Heights, East Boston. Governor Cox, Mayor Peters, General Edwards, Colonel Edward Logan and Charles H. Cole have been invited. Timothy W. Kelley is chairman and Charles C. Donoghue secretary. Mary Smith, Catherine Merrigan, Elizabeth Mallory and Ida Harvey comprise the music committee.

HENRY P. DAVISON CONTINUES TO GAIN

New York, Aug. 17.—Henry P. Davison, financier and member of the firm of J. P. Morgan, continues to improve at Roosevelt Hospital, where he underwent an operation last week.

"Mr. Davison's condition is very, very good," was the reply made today to inquiries.

LAWRENCE GIRL AND BOY SLIP AWAY AND WED

Bride, 16, Found by Parents After Search, Is Persuaded to Return Home

By International News Service

Lawrence, Aug. 17.—A boy and girl elopement came to light here today when it was learned that sixteen-year-old Marie Severious and Leo Marchand, two years her senior, had slipped away to Salem, N. H., and been married. Now the youthful couple is worried over the legal aspect of their marriage.

A telegram to Isadore Severious of No. 205 West street brought first intimation of the romance. It was signed by the daughter of the family and read:

"Dear Father and Mother: Just married this p. m. On way to our honeymoon. Your daughter, Marie."

The parents of the girl immediately began a search for the honeymooners, and, accompanied by a detail of police, they were found at the Summer cottage of Marchand's family at Brogan's Camp, on the Merrimac river, near here.

Young Marchand produced a certificate of marriage, but in spite of this his 16-year-old bride was prevailed upon to return home with her mother and father. She has agreed to see a lawyer today.

The marriage, according to the certificate, was performed by the Rev. C. M. Miller, a Baptist minister, and witnessed by Miss Lucy Gouleb and Eugene Couture, both of this city.

Airedale All Stuck Up in Fight With Pet Porcupine

By Associated Press.

Rockville Centre, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Billy, a thoroughbred Airedale, was under the care of a veterinarian today as the result of charging a neighbor's pet porcupine and biting through most of his fortifications. When Billy returned home with his chum Timmy, an Irish terrier, after a night's absence, quills were projecting all over him. In an hour's work with pincers the doctor removed 300 spines, many of them two inches long. Scores were stuck in his mouth.

Despite the fighting nature of his breed, Timmy was more discreet in charging the enemy than Billy, as he had only a few reminders of the fray.

The neighbor's pet has disappeared and so Billy's owners think the Airedale won the battle.

ROBBERS KIDNAP CAPE COD GIRL AND ESCORT

Young Woman Attacked After Auto Abduction; Companion Bound and Robbed

Buzzards Bay, Aug. 17.—William Eldredge of Bourne and Miss Gertrude Butler, daughter of the Buzzards Bay station master, were held up by three men, opposite the village schoolhouse, at the point of a gun. Eldredge was bound and robbed and, with Miss Butler, spirited in the machine to a lonely spot, near Lakecroft Inn, on the road to Plymouth.

When near the inn, about three miles from here, it is charged the trio took Miss Butler from the machine and attacked her, leaving her escort with her as they fled from the scene.

It has been learned that the auto used by the highwaymen was stolen from Wareham.

The victims, who are widely known here, were returning to the Eldredge home on Buzzards Bay after a visit to an amusement place at Bourne when kidnaped.

"WIZARD" HEARTBROKEN OVER DEFEAT IN TENNIS MATCH

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Suzanne Lenglen, her marvelous record on the tennis courts blemished by defeat for the first time in two years, lay in her sick bed today a tragic figure whose dreams of several years had vanished.

She came to America expectant of winning the title of United States champion on the Forest Hills court, and yesterday, when her opportunity to eliminate the titleholder, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, came, she was not Suzanne the marvelous. She was sick, and her dash and accuracy of placement were gone.

Mrs. Mallory, playing with a skill she seldom has equaled, defeated this French jewel of the court 6—2 in their first set.

* * *

Then, when Suzanne failed to rally at the opening of the second set she walked to the umpire and said: "I positively cannot continue. I cannot breathe."

* * *

Exhausted by coughing from a sudden recurrence of bronchitis, the French wizard dropped into a chair and later went to her rooms and was ordered by a physician to rest for at least a week.

Her manager said he expected Mlle. Lenglen would be able to participate in the mixed doubles at the Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, next week, and later fulfill her scheduled engagements elsewhere in the United States.

But her hope of winning the championship has passed. So, too, has the marvelous reputation of not having lost a set in two years of tournament play.

Mlle. Lenglen in these two years conquered every woman tennis player of note in Europe, won all the national championships in which she participated, and acquired the title of world champion through victory at Wimbledon.

But in the United States the Wimbledon Tournament is not recognized as conferring a world title on the victor, and so Mlle. Lenglen, anxious to remove all doubt that her skill was supreme, came here to win the American laurels.

She had triumphed over Mrs. Mallory only a few weeks ago in France, and last year she defeated a British star who previously had won from Mrs. Mallory.

* * *

Suzanne expected to defeat the United States champion again, but she warned those who met her on her arrival from France last Saturday that she was a convalescent and wanted to "put in an alibi early" should her ambition fall of achievement.

* * *

The French star did not want to play yesterday. Hours before her time to dance upon the courts came she told A. R. De Joannis, vice-president of the French Lawn Tennis Federation, who accompanied her, that she was ill and should not play. But he insisted, asking Suzanne not to disappoint the thousands who came to see her.

* * *

This thought, and her ambition to win the championship, caused her to yield against her expressed wishes, Mr. De Joannis said.

* * *

From the start she was not as advertised. In the first place she wore no sweater when she skipped out to the court.

Customarily, Suzanne wears at least two or three of them, peeling them off one by one as the play progresses.

All the heralded tornado-on-tiptoe stuff was absent, too. Mademoiselle did not pirouette. She did not leap high into the air in a thrilling whirl to slash the ball back across the net. She appeared bereft of all the dazzling jumps from one end of the court to the other and the flashy smashing at the net for which she is famous.

She remained at the baseline, running from one side to the other, and, save occasionally, she relied on a conservative graceful stroke in all her returns.

It was obvious that she was not in her usual surpassing form.

Mrs. Mallory, on the other hand, appeared at the peak of her game. She was all over the court, banging her racket against the ball with terrible force.

Leading contenders for the title now, in the eyes of the experts, are Mrs. Mallory, representing the East, and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Los Angeles and Miss Mary K. Browne of Santa Monica, Cal., representing the West.

EXPLAINS DEFAULT.

The confusion created by Mlle. Lenglen's retirement was somewhat clarified by an American who pointed out the peculiar difference between French and American habits.

Feature Matches on Schedule Today for Tennis Stars

The following matches were scheduled as features today:

Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Los Angeles vs. Mrs. Edward Raymond of New York.

Mrs. B. E. Cole of Boston vs. Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, New York, vs. Miss Florence Sheldon, Montclair, N. J.

Miss Phyllis Walsh of Philadelphia vs. Miss Helen Gilleaudeau of New York.

Miss Mary K. Browne of Santa Monica, Cal., vs. Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston.

"In France," he said, "it is no disgrace to retire when one is outclassed. In America we believe in taking a beating, until the end comes. But Mlle. Lenglen should be judged by the customs to which she is habituated, not by those of this country. Moreover, I think she will redeem herself if she continues to play in this country.

"I saw her at Antwerp and Wimbledon. She was invincible. I still think she is—despite her defeat."

A few years ago Mrs. Mallory, then Molla Bjurstedt, was called the "wonder girl." She seemed to be invincible. Then, some months ago, she went to Europe and was easily and decisively beaten by Mlle. Lenglen.

At Wimbledon the French girl successfully defended the championship of the world she had previously won. The world of American tennis and sport yearned for a glimpse of the girl who had, among other things, been called the marvel of the age.

A visit to this country was arranged. Mlle. Lenglen said she would come and in the interests of a committee raising funds for devastated France she came.

She was welcomed, as Georges Carpentier was welcomed. America greeted her with cordial and friendly curiosity. She leaves those who saw her here in doubt.

"WONDER GIRL" AGAIN.

Mrs. Mallory—the wonder girl of a few years ago—has reached back into time and become the "wonder girl" again.

While Mlle. Lenglen tripped jauntily and with evident gayety and keen anticipation to the court, she followed slowly, grimly, stolidly determined.

She was to defend her title as champion of America. She was determined upon revenge.

She obtained it—cruelly, brutally, relentlessly.

Mrs. Mallory and the French girl were to have teamed up and played as a team in the doubles later. But following the singles match, Suzanne lost herself in the mists of tragic disappointment, and the match was forgotten.

Mary Browne, girl of the Golden West, came out on the courts and engaged in a match with Mrs. Deforest Candee, a player of some standing in metropolitan tennis. Miss Browne won six consecutive games before her opponent was able to penetrate the defence. Mrs. De Candee won the first two games of the second set, but Miss Browne immediately resumed her relentless assault and won out by the score of 6—0, 6—3.

Elenora Sears, famous horsewoman, and all around society athlete of Boston, was defeated by Miss Edith Sigourney, also of Boston, 6—2, 6—1.

Mrs. Mary Sutton Bundy, a former National champion, also came through with an easy victory, and won from Miss Virginia Travell without the loss of a game.

BIG GOLF CLUBS TO CARE FOR YOUNGSTERS

New Plan Started in Chicago to Perfect Promising Public Links Players

Chicago, Aug. 17.—A new plan to perfect the more promising public links golfers who have not the financial ability to belong to private clubs has been started in Chicago.

The scheme is to have each club, of which there are more than fifty in and about Chicago, admit at least two promising players as non-voting members with playing privileges and the right to represent the club in tournaments.

George Hortman of the Jackson Park public links and George Hackl, Jr. of the Lincoln Park course have been those chosen by Midlothian Club, it was announced today.

Hartman has twice won the city championship, while Hackl, who is only fifteen years old, can shoot par on the most difficult course.

While there has been some sporadic actions of this nature heretofore, especially in St. Louis and Chicago, no previous attempt has been made to make the scheme general enough to care for all the potential champions.

NEWTON COPPERS LOSE TO MANCHESTER POLICE

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 17. — The Newton Police team was defeated by the Manchester Police team, 5 to 3, in an exciting game yesterday.

Flanagan struck out twelve of the Newtonites and featured at the bat with a home run, double and single.

Haley pitched well for the visiting team but his support was wretched, eleven errors being charged against his teammates.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 17.—Walter Hoover, United States singles scull champion, and Milton Belyea, Canadian titleholder, will not meet in the Renforth reatta here next week, it was learned today.

RICHARDS AND JONES GET SETBACKS

Youthful Stars Find That Age and Experience Still Has a Punch

The fate of Bobby Jones and Vincent Richards this summer rather put a crimp in the "youth will be served" theory in sports. Youth will be served, beyond doubt, but from time immemorial youth has had to wait for the second table.

Beyond doubt both Jones and Richards will in due time, come to the head of the class. Jones is one of the greatest amateur golfers ever developed in the world. His defeats and his failures to come have been due to youth alone: youth, overeager and at times over-confident. Jones in addition to youth has a temper to conquer, one he has fought valiantly and seemed to have under control. Richards, who in all probability will be the greatest tennis player in the world, and who even at eighteen possesses every qualification for championship tournaments, after sweeping the courts during the early tournaments showed his one weakness—youth. He showed that when met by an equal, possessing the experience, the steadiness and the philosophy that comes with age, he can be beaten.

Occasionally, it is true, youth conquers by sheer impetuosity, breaking down all resistance and sweeping away all obstacles, but when the test comes between men of equal skill the percentage is with experience.

ONLY ONE FOREIGN ENTRY FOR TITLE GOLF TOURNEY

New York, Aug. 17.—Only one foreign entry has been received thus far for the American National Amateur Golf Championship Tournament at the St. Louis Country Club, next month, the United States Golf Association announced today.

The entry is that of Raymond Swift, a British golfer of the Oakdale Golf Club, which was forwarded by the secretary of the Royal and Ancient Committee.

The first entry received was that of Jerome D. Travers, of the Upper Montclair (N. J.) Country Club, who has held the championship four times. The entry list closes September 3.

LANDIS WARS ON PLAYERS WHO SEEK TRADES

Head of Baseball Slowly but Surely Digging to Bottom of Baseball Troubles

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Judge Landis is slowly but surely digging to the bottom of the troubles of baseball and has hit close to the root of one of the greatest evils the sport ever has known. He evidently considers that there is a peril to the sport in players who grow discontented with certain teams, relaxing in their work with a view of getting traded.

This accusation has been raised frequently in the past few years, and charges have been openly made that certain players have "laid down" on certain managers and clubs in order to compel trades. In some cases the persons making these charges have accused certain managers of tampering with players with a view of creating discontent and causing them to want to be traded.

* * *

Whether these accusations are true or not, Judge Landis is taking a great step forward in squelching the practice, and there is small doubt but that, if he continues his investigations, he will get results and stop the practice. His big move next Winter should be to order that a law be passed forbidding all trading and selling of players during the playing season. This would remove all reason and temptation.

* * *

Judge Landis took prompt action in the case of Irish Meusel, who went to the New York club from Philadelphia. There were stories that Meusel was dissatisfied and not giving his best efforts to the club, and Judge Landis called him into his office and secured information regarding his own acts and the playing of the club during the games in which the deal was hanging fire.

He has a wonderful way of getting information, for he goes right to the heart of a matter and threshes it out. He gave the player a clean bill of health, but he learned a lot about conditions.

Also it is very evident that the supreme head of baseball is not after the flea in any case, but is trying to get the dog.

* * *

This growing peril to baseball, the peril of players on weak clubs acting so as to force their sale to strong clubs, has become a vital menace to the sport. In the Groh case Judge Landis prevented a scandal by stopping the deal entirely. In the Dugan case the player himself saw the light in time to avoid a serious impasse. He evidently is determined to put an end to all deals which savor of trickery—and he has his hands full.

Undoubtedly if players fall into the habit of playing for their releases, baseball will be sadly crippled.

* * *

Judge Landis seems to have centred recently upon the Philadelphia situation and to have discovered that it is becoming unbearable. What Meusel told him of inside conditions in the Philadelphia National team must have supported what Bill Donovan, the deposed manager, told him. The Donovan case continues to be somewhat shrouded in mystery. Bill did not show up to answer questions, although previously he had gone over the situation with Judge Landis.

No one who knows Bill Donovan well believes he was concerned in anything wrong. He knew gamblers and he evidently heard that the 1919 world's series was not on the square.

Just how far the powers are going in this matter is hard to tell; but if they are going to drop every one who heard that the series was fixed and then drop every player who knew and associated with gamblers there is going to be a considerable house cleaning.

JAP AND INDIAN TENNIS STARS IN FINAL TRIALS

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Japanese and Indian tennis teams had their final practice today in preparation for the first matches of their Davis cup semi-final round clash at Lake Forest, Ill., tomorrow.

Captain Ichiya Kumagae of Japan and Captain S. M. Jacob of India met Beals C. Wright of Boston, official referee, shortly after his arrival from the East today and completed rules on playing arrangements.

The Indian team sustained a blow at the eleventh hour when Captain Jacob was forced to pay his second visit in two days to a doctor for treatment of his right knee, which has bothered him for a week.

He is prepared to resign his place in the singles for another member of the team, probably L. S. Deane, unless the effects of a slight sprain have disappeared by tomorrow.

VEAN GREGG SIGNS WITH CANADA CLUB

Edmonton, Alta., Aug. 17.—Vean Gregg, former Philadelphia pitcher, who quit the Athletics to take up farming some years ago, and who is now a free agent, has signed a contract to play with the Edmonton club of the Western Canada League and will join the team here Friday.

Gregg is said to be in good shape, having been pitching some independent ball during the present Summer.

RECORD 3-YEAR-OLD FIELD IN BIG RACE

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—The best field of three-year-old trotters to face the starter this season was promised for the Nawbeek Stake of $2,000 this afternoon at the Grand Circuit meeting at the Belmont Driving Club's track at Narberth, Pa.

Nineteen young trotters, the pick of the colts and fillies which have started this year, were entered. A. B. Coxe of Paoli, Pa., has offered a special silver trophy.

SHEVLIN AND SIEGEL TO SETTLE OLD RING DISPUTE NEXT MONTH

By JACK CONWAY

Eddie Shevlin, stout-hearted Roxbury welterweight, and Nate Siegel of Revere have agreed to settle their ring feud in a ten-round bout at the Revere Cycle Track on September 1. The bout will be at 145 pounds at 3 o'clock. The boxers will get 60 per cent. of the gate receipts. Of this amount 75 per cent. will go to the winner and 25 per cent. to the loser.

Siegel's charge that Shevlin was "yellow" caused the Roxbury warrior to see "red." He immediately notified Billy Henderson, his manager, to get into communication with Messrs. Conley and Carter and arrange for a bout.

When Siegel was New England welterweight champion, it was impossible to even drag him into a ring with Shevlin. Times, however, have changed and Nate realizes that the best way for him to reach the heights once more is by winning over Shevlin. The latter has not lost a bout in two years and believes he will be able to conquer Siegel as easily as he disposed of the other men who tried to upset his victorious ring surge.

* * *

Messrs. Conley and Carter will hold another meeting with Henderson today at which final arrangements for the match will be made. The show will be staged under the direction of the Spanish War Veterans. Tom Goodwin is doing the matchmaking for this organization.

* * *

There was a near riot in the office of the Commercial Club, Room 12, No. 28 School street, when Johnny Tillman charged that Lou Bogash was afraid to meet him. Tillman says Bogash asked that the Commercial A. C.'s show be put back until Friday night as the Bridgeport man feared he would be given a sound trouncing if not at his best.

* * *

"After I defeat Bogash, I'll be ready for the winner of the Darden-Flynn bout," said Tillman.

* * *

"Darden would knock you out," said Rob Roy, Darden's manager, who was in the office at the time.

* * *

"I haven't seen anybody knocking me out," was Tillman's retort. "You claim everybody has been dodging Darden. If I beat Bogash, you'll find that there is one man who is not afraid to battle the negro welterweight, and what's more, who can beat him."

* * *

Irish Paddy Flynn then burst into the picture and was told that Darden planned to knock him out.

"That's what they all say," shot back the Everett warrior.

"Kloby, Gibbons, Shevlin and the rest were all going to stop me. But they didn't. I am too tough for Darden as well. I am going better right now than ever before and I plan to prove that Darden is not the great fighter some people think he is."

* * *

B. H. Benton (Rob Roy), manager of Sailor Darden, writes:

"Referring to your complimentary remarks about Sailor Darden, and his being champion of the navy, please allow me to say that he is all that but stronger and more particular, he is the colored light and welterweight champion of the world, having won the last title from Panama Joe Gans in Charlestown, S. C., June 21, 1920. He again met Panama Joe in Madison Square Garden, last December, weighing 139 pounds, while Gans was close to 155 pounds. The Sailor's ambition is to fight Panama Joe again, for the world's colored middleweight title, and the Rickard diamond belt and to do so Darden will have to concede twelve or fifteen pounds.

* * *

"Another ambition of Sailor Darden, a legitimate lightweight, he being able to fight at 135 pounds, is to have a crack at one or all of the pretentious welterweights or semi-middleweights, about New England, who have formed a select trust among themselves. Darden has offered to make a match with Jock Malone, Lou Bogash, Paul Doyle, Kloby, Eddie Shevlin, Nate Siegel or any of that bunch.

"The first four have been offered a guarantee of $3,000 to meet Darden, but not one of them can be induced to meet a little lightweight. It may be flattery for Sailor Darden, but there is nothing in such dodging and evasion that commends any of the men named, as having even second-class standing, by insuring themselves against such a little fellow.

* * *

"As regards the match with 'Irish Paddy' Flynn, the man who recently went fifteen rounds with Mike Gibbons, it has been made conditionally. The manager and matchmaker of the Commercial A. C. are very old friends of mine, and in consenting to allow Darden to meet Flynn, it is not only as a favor to the Commercial Club people, but to meet a demand of the public. It is really a big sacrifice, but the match has been made conditionally that if Lou Bogash beats Johnny Tillman, he will sign before the fight to meet Sailor Darden, within three weeks, provided Sailor beats Flynn.

* * *

"Really Darden is meeting Flynn at less than a week's notice, and he has not had a glove on for over two months, the delay being occasioned by the effort to get one of the members of the select trust to make a match. As the Sailor is an exceptional young man, and not an 'out' in his manner of living, he is practically ready at a moment's notice to meet anyone and at any weight. He is the revelation of the prize ring for the past twenty years. He is not a dancing master, or sprinter, but an effective fighter after the style of Kid Lavigne, with a 'pack' in either hand.

* * *

"If Lou Bogash has signed to meet Darden, under conditions named, the patrons of boxing hereabouts are insured of one of those old-time Mysterious Billy Smith-Joe Walcott thrilling engagements. Lou Bogash compares favorably with any of the middleweights in this country, and I know that Sailor Darden would welcome a meeting with any of them, not excepting Mike Gibbons, the electric action man. As for Gus Platts, he would not be good enough for a punching bag for the Sailor."

* * *

Mickey Kirst, St. Paul lightweight, is hot after a bout with George (Kid) Lee of Worcester. Kirst is one of the few men who have ever beaten Lee. He performed this task in a tussle at Worcester four months ago. Since then Lee has been winning one bout after another and is now the lightweight champion of Worcester county.

* * *

Kirst was at the ringside when Lee recently defeated Billy Cahill. "I can trounce Lee right now," asserted Kirst. "I punch too hard for the Worcester boy. I am also too aggressive for him. These assets carried me to victory when I clashed with Lee four months ago and they will win the honors once more if Lee has courage enough to enter a ring with me."

Paris, Aug. 17.—Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, will meet Vanderveer, the Dutch heavyweight, at Sheveningen, a fashionable bathing resort in Holland, next month, says an Amsterdam dispatch to the Auto.

LIVELY BALL CHARGE IS SPIKED BY MAKER

The mystery of the lively ball is solved, at least as far as the maker of that ball can solve it. Julian Curtiss, president of the Spalding company, manufacturers of the ball, who personally has supervised the invention and the making of every ball used in the last three decades, declares that no change has been made in the ball at all since August of 1910, when the cork centre surrounded by rubber was introduced.

He be[illegible] that the ba[illegible] use to day is [illegible] the same [illegible] that used [illegible] with the [illegible] exception of the yarn being of a higher and more uniform quality and the horse hide used in manufacture a trifle better grade. He says that [illegible] quality than that [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] somewhat [illegible] But [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] the ball [illegible] [illegible] ex[illegible]

* * *

Further, he declares emphatically that no change in the ball w[illegible] around July 1, as currently reported among major league players, and that no change will be made. Further, he says that the ball has made the game more popular than it ever has been.

* * *

"[illegible] exactly the same," M[r.] C[urtiss] [illegible] [illegible] This may be [illegible] since the world [illegible] during the war and [illegible] [illegible] was even w[illegible] The government was [illegible] [illegible] ber or w[illegible] be used for any purpose save [illegible] war uses.

There is no doubt that the ball we turn out was not up to the standard we could get, merely because we could not get the grade of materials used previously.

[illegible] conditions changed the ball has [illegible] We have found [illegible] [illegible] a uniform quality of wool [illegible] No [illegible] could give us the quality demanded in every shipment [illegible] built our own mill and have made our own yarn. The wool is a long staple, a mixture of the best grades of American and Australian wool. The greatest care is exercised in making this yarn, and the quality is absolutely uniform. There is a chance that the ball may be a trifle more lively because of this better grade of yarn.

During the war it was practically impossible to get the grade of horse hide required for baseballs. Besides the price being prohibitive, the leather was needed elsewhere. Only a few covers can be cut from one hide, and [illegible] from certain sections of the hide. Necessarily then the quality of every [illegible] used in making balls ran down. After the war it improved. I can now buy horse hide at a reasonable figure and select the best hides for use. That may have a slight effect for the better on the ball.

* * *

HOW A BASEBALL IS MADE

"Few persons understand the care and watchfulness exercised in making the ball used in the major leagues. Every bit of wool is carefully chosen. The yarn is made absolutely uniform, as it must be to stand the strain of winding. The cork centers are molded in exactly the same size and weight. The rubber, made in our own plant, also is of higher quality than was procurable during the war. The rubber is molded into two absolutely uniform cups, exactly fitting over the cork core.

* * *

"Girls place the cork inside the cups, and after they have been weighed and measured they are sent to the vulcanizer, who fastens them together. They are inspected and weighed and placed in the machine for winding. This machine is the same that has been in use ever since the league ball was invented. The yarn is wound onto the core in uniform layers. In some cases the pressure forces the core slightly out of center. After the yarn is wound onto the core the ball is again [illegible], weighed and measured. The ball, the cover and the stitching thread are weighed together. There is a slight variation in the thickness of horse hide and weighing reveals this difference.

"The covers are stitched onto the balls by men trained for years at the work. We have had fathers teaching their sons, generation after generation, and the work is extremely delicate and exact. Absolutely no change has been made in the method for years.

"After the balls are finished the final inspection, weighing and measuring is done, the ones showing the slightest variation are culled and only perfect balls used.

* * *

"Most of the complaint against the ball is [illegible] by the pitchers. It seems to me that the big reason for the long hitting and the great increase in batting is increased confidence among the batters. Fellows who were up there poking and dodging are standing up and wa[illegible] the ball. The pitchers seem intimidated. They are of course handicapped to some extent by the restrictive rules, but having had the upper hand so long they have met a reverse, and instead of the pitchers being confident of their ability the batters have the confidence.

Braves Gain a Full Game on Giants in Flag Race

The Braves are slowly, but steadily and surely, climbing up in the National League pennant race. They are now only two games behind the Giants. Boston gained a full game on New York yesterday, and a half game on Pittsburgh. The Pirates lost the first game to Philadelphia but managed to squeeze in a victory in the second. The Pirates lead the Braves eight full games. As a baseball game, itself, is not over until the last man is out in the last inning, so is this pennant race in doubt until the last possible flicker of a chance is extinguished. The Braves have a splendid opportunity to get the flag by cleaning up in this series with the Cubs. Then they can go after the Pirates, when they come here for games on Saturday and next Monday and Tuesday, tooth and nail.

All up for the Battling Braves!

RED SOX GAMES HELD UP BY WET GROUNDS

Tigers and Duffy's Clan to Meet in Double-Headers To-morrow and Friday

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—The Red Sox—[illegible] the Red Sox who once upon a time when they had such great ball players as Speaker, Hooper, Lewis, Gardner, Carrigan, Babe Ruth and others, cast fear into Detroiters but [illegible] second [illegible] on Red Sox [illegible] [illegible] Western trip of the season [illegible] with a double-header at the Tigers' park but the rain held [illegible] up.

Two games will be played tomorrow and two more on Friday.

Duffy and his clan of scarlet hued hose have a fine chance to advance their standing at the expense of the Tigers who have shot their bolt apparently. The Red Sox had all the better of the batting when Detroit was at Fenway Park a few days ago and Manager Tyrus Cobb frankly admits that he does not expect his Tigers to be any fiercer at home than they were when hunting abroad.

The Red Sox pitchers, Joe Bush, Herb Pennock and Sam Jones particularly seem to have the well known "Injun" sign on the Cobbites. It would not be surprising if the Red Sox took all four games away from the home club on this trip.

Manager Cobb plans to pitch Red Oldham in the opening game tomorrow and Howard Ehmke in the other. The Red Sox pitching choices are Bush and Pennock. Manager Duffy is desirous of annexing both double-headers, for the work of the Red Sox all year has cut rather a sorry spectacle in comparison with that of the olden golden days.

After the series here the Red Sox go to Cleveland, St. Louis and Chicago for three days each, [illegible] three days on the way home and return to Fenway Park for the balance of the season with the exception of a short six-day sortie to New York, Washington and Philadelphia, September 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12.

Says Every Amateur Singer Should Go Abroad-- or Further, if Possible

There's only one thing worse than a woman who can sing and doesn't and that's a woman who can't sing and does.

They take lessons in voice control, but what they need most is self-control.

A girl may have her voice trained in Europe but [she] doesn't know how to behave in America.

Every amateur singer should go abroad—or further if possible.

A woman washes her head and she can't do anything with her hair. She washes her neck and she can't do anything with her voice.

Some singers go on the stage and sing and not a person in the audience will move. They try it in their apartment and every tenant in the house moves.

A lot of singers pull the shades down when they sing. They can't bear to see the other tenants suffer.

Some of them just sing to kill time and they give it an awful death.

Their song may be good for the soul, but it's bad for the ears.

Some singers can do anything with their voice, only they don't do it.

They can throw their voice, but they don't throw it in the right place.

Everybody loves to listen to a finished singer. They're glad when she's finished.

Some of them should never have started.

If their voices are their fortunes, a lot of them are in debt.

Some people sing because they enjoy it, some [illegible] because they think they ought [to] and others sing for no reason at all.

A singer very seldom hears his own voice. If he could, he probably wouldn't sing.

He keeps at it for art's sake. He ought to stop it for the public's sake.

We have men in this country who's business it is to bring singers out. What we need is a lot of men to take them back.

A vocalist's motto is "Do or die." Most of them ought to die for what they do.

Some people think that singers live longer than other human beings. They don't live any longer, it only seems longer.

BABE ADAMS IS EAGER TO PITCH IN BIG SERIES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 17.—Pittsburgh is baseball crazy this year. It's a million to one bet that Pittsburgh will win the National League flag, the natives hereabouts will tell you.

But there is a touch of pathos in this great race.

Charles B. ("Babe") Adams, gentleman, clean-living athlete, is thirty-eight and about done in big time baseball. Adams knows it.

In 1909, twelve long years ago, Babe Adams [was] in the world's series. [Tha]t year was his hero. Though nothing more than a rookie he won three games of the series. It was up [illegible] [illegible] between Pittsburgh and Detroit. [An]d Kid Adams [illegible] the Tigers [illegible] the world's championship. He was the wonder pitcher of that time.

* * *

Some years since then the great "Babe" didn't play the greatest brand of baseball extant. Half a dozen years ago they said he was through, and it did at times look like it. But last year "Babe" took a brace. He has been a popular idol hereabouts for a long time. Win or lose, the gang was always for him, and they boosted him when they were roasting other players.

But Manager George Gibson made wonderful progress last year toward a flag-winning team, but he couldn't quite come across.

During the Winter Gibby plotted and schemed, and he swapped and dickered until this Spring he had a promising-looking team when they went to training camp.

After the season opened and Pittsburgh set the pace the croakers said it was a Spring flash, and the Pirates would blow up, but they are still going good.

* * *

Realizing that Pittsburgh would come mighty near having a winning team this year "Babe" Adams determined he would pitch in one more world's series. He has his heart set on [th]at and the aging veteran has been pitching his head off all season, and every time you see Adams chalked up on the score board as the pitcher you can get your money down that [illegible] [illegible] is sure to win that game.

Pittsburgh is hungry for a pennant. It has cast sheep's eyes at the pennant for a long time in vain.

Robert W. Chambers' Famous Story THE STREETS OF ASCALON Illustrated by Charles Dana Gibson

A Spirited and Swiftly Moving Romance of Hearts and High Society, by the Greatest Living Master of Fiction

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

Dick Quarren, society idler and spendthrift, but clever and good looking, has fallen desperately in love with Strelsa Leeds. She has had one unfortunate matrimonial experience, and since her advent into New York high society has admirers by the score. Quarren meets her first at a masked ball given by Molly Wycherly, wins an hour out of her life on a wager and refrains from kissing her, as he tells her he is eager to do. She tells him there can be nothing serious between them, but she asks him to always think well of her. The Dankmere galleries are opened and Quarren takes a few days off at Witch-Hollow. Strelsa tells him she is to marry Langly Sprowl. He tells her that he loves her. Strelsa relates to him the story of her marriage to Leeds. He returns to town and finds Westguard giving a lively party in the art gallery. Quarren hires a pretty stenographer. Dankmere falls in love with her. Strelsa discovers Sprowl's true character and refuses to marry him. Sprowl tells his aunt he will not marry Mary Ledwith. Strelsa writes Quarren from Witch Hollow.

"SHE'S so young and so empty-headed, just a shallow, hare-brained little thing who has no more molar idea of sin than a humming bird—nor perhaps has she any now except that the world has hurt her and broken her wings and damaged her plumage, and the sunlight in which she sparkled for a Summer has faded to a chill, gray twilight—Oh, Rix, it is really pitiful; and somehow I can't seem to remember whether she was guilty or not, because she's so ill, so broken—lying here amid the splendor of her huge house——

"You know Mrs. Sprowl is on her way to Carlsbad. You haven't written me what took place in your last interview with her, and I've asked you twice. Won't you tell me?

"Langly, thank goodness, never disturbs us. And, Rix, do you know that he has never been to call on Mary Ledwith? He keeps to his own estate and nobody even sees him. Which is all I ask at any rate.

"So Sir Charles called on you and told you about Chryseos? Isn't Sir Charles the most darling man you ever knew? I never knew such a man. There is not one atom of anything small or unworthy in his character. And I tell you very frankly that, thinking about him at times, I am amazed at myself for not falling in love with him.

"Which is proof sufficient that if I couldn't care for him I cannot ever care for any man. Don't you think so?

"Now all this letter has been devoted to matters concerning myself and not one line to you and the exciting success you and Lord Dankmere are making of your new business.

"Oh, Rix, I am not indifferent; all the time I have been writing to you, that has been surging and laughing in my heart—like some delicious aria that charmingly occupies your mind while you go happily about other matters—happy because the ceaseless melody that enchants you makes you so.

"I have read your letter so many times, over and over; and always the same thrill of excitement begins when I come to the part where you begin to suspect that under the daubed surface of that canvas there may be something worth while.

A Real Treasure

"Is it really and truly a Van Dyck? Is there any chance that it it not? Is it possible that all these years no one of Dankmere's people suspected what was hidden under the aged paint and varnish of that tiresome old British landscape? tiresome old British landscape?

"And it remained for you to suspect it!—for you to discover it? O, Rix, I'm proud of you!

"And how perfectly wonderful it is that now you know its history, when it was supposed to have disappeared, where it has remained ever since under its ignoble integument of foolish paint.

"No, I promise not to say one word about it until I have your permission. I understand quite well why you desire to keep the matter from the newspapers for the present. But—won't it make you and Lord Dankmere rich? Tell me—please tell me. I don't want money for myself any more, but I do want it for you. You need it; you can do so much with it, use it so intelligently, [illegible], make the world better with it—make it more beautiful, and people happier.

"What a chasm, Rix, between what we were a year ago, and what we care to be—What we are trying to be today! Sometimes I think of it, not unhappily, merely wondering.

"Toward what goal were we moving a year ago? What was there to be of such lives?—what at the end? Why, there was, for us, no more significance in living than there is to any overfed animal—not as much!

"Oh, this glorious country of high clouds and far horizons!—and alas! for the Streets of Ascalon where such as I once was going to and fro—clad delicately in scarlet and ornaments of gold."

A Prisoner?

"'Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the Streets of Ascalon'—that the pavements of the Philistines have bruised my feet, and their Five Cities weary me, and Philistia's high towers are become a burden to my soul. For their gods are too many and too strange for me. So I am decided to remain here—ere 'they that look out of their windows be darkened' and 'the doors be shut in the Streets'—'and all the daughters of music shall be brought low.'

"My poor comrade! Must you remain a prisoner in the Streets of Ascalon? Yet, through your soul I know as free and fresh a breeze is blowing as stirs the curtains at my open window!—You wonderful man to evoke in imagery—to visualise and conceive all that had to be concrete to cure me soul and body of my hurts!

"I have been reading Karl Westguard's new novel, Rix, there is no story in it, nothing at all that I can discover except a very earnest warming over of several modern philosophers' views and conclusions concerning social problems.

"I hate to speak unkindly of it; I wanted to like it because I like Karl Westguard. But it isn't fiction and it isn't philosophy, a [illegible] treatment of social problems [illegible] to follow method already [illegible]

"Do you think people will buy it? But I suppose Karl cares since he's made up his quarrel with his aunt.

Much Subdued

"Poor old lady! Did you ever see anybody so subdued and forlorn? Something has gone wrong with her. She told me that she had had a most dreadful scene with Langly and that she had not been well since.

Strelsa Waits for the Arrival of Quarren

"I'm afraid that sounds like gospel, but I wanted you to know. Is it gossip for me to tell you so much? I tell you about everything. If it's gossip, make me stop.

"And now—when are you coming to see me. I am still at Molly's, you know. My house is being cleaned and sweetened and papered and chintzed and made livable and lovable.

"When?—please.

"Your friend and comrade,

"STRELSA."

Quarren telegraphed:

[illegible] come [illegible] Look for me any day this week. Letter follows."

Then he wrote her a long letter, and was still at it when Jessie Vining went to lunch and when Dankmere got onto his little legs and strolled out, also. There was no need to arouse anybody's suspicions by hurrying, so Dankmere waited until he turned the corner before his little legs began to trot.

Miss Vining would be at her usual table, anyway—and probably as calmly surprised to see him as she always was. For the [illegible] of their encounter [illegible] the same restaurant seemed to furnish an endless source of astonishment to them both. Apparently Jessie Vining could never understand it, and to him it appeared to be a coincidence utterly unfathomable.

Unexpected Arrival

Meanwhile Quarren had mailed his letter to Strelsa and had returned to his workshop in the basement where several canvases awaited his attention.

And it was while he was particularly busy that the front doorbell rang and he had to go up and open.

At first he did not recognize the figure standing on the steps in the glare of the sun; then, surprised, he held out his rather grimy hand with that instinct of kindness toward anything that seemed to need it; and the thin, pallid hand of Ledwith fell limply into his, contracting nervously the next second.

"Come in," said Quarren pleasantly. "It's very nice of you to think of me, Ledwith."

The man's hollow eyes avoided his and roamed restlessly about the gallery, looking at picture after picture and scarcely seeing them. Inside his loose Summer clothing his thin, nervous frame was shifting continuously even while he stood gazing almost vacantly at the walls of the gallery.

For a little while Quarren endeavored to interest him in the canvases, meaning only charity to a man who had clearly lost his grip on things; then, afraid of bewildering and distressing a mind so nearly extinct, the young fellow remained silent, merely accompanying Ledwith as he moved purposelessly hither and thither or halted capriciously, staring into space and twitching his scarred fingers.

"You're busy, I suppose," he said.

"Yes, I am," said Quarren, frankly. "But that needn't make any difference if you'd care to come to the basement and talk to me while I'm at work."

Ledwith made no reply for a moment, then, abruptly:

"You're always kind to me, Quarren."

"Get over that idea," laughed the younger man. "Strange as it may seem my natural inclination is to like people. Come on downstairs."

In the littered disorder of the basement he found a chair for his visitor, then, without further excuse, went smilingly about his work, explaining it as it proceeded.

The Story of a Beautiful Girl and the Man for Whom She Made a Great Sacrifice

"Here's an old picture by some Italian gink—impossible to tell by whom it was painted but not difficult to assign it to a certain date and school. . . . See what I'm doing, Ledwith?

"That's what we call 'rabbit glue' because it's made out of rabbits' bones—or that's the belief, anyway. It's gilder's glue.

"Now I dissolve this much of it in hot water—then I glue over the face of the picture three layers of tissue paper, one on top of the other—so!

"Now here is a new chassis or stretcher over which I have stretched a new linen canvas. Yesterday I sponged it as a tailor sponges cloth; and now it's dry and tight.

"Now I'm going to reline this battered old Italian canvas. It's already been relined—perhaps a hundred years ago. So first I take off the old relining canvas—with hot water—this way—cleaning off all the old paste or glue from it with alcohol.

"Now here's a pot of paste in which there is also glue and whitening; and I spread it over the back of this old painting, and then, very gingerly, glue it over the new linen canvas on the stretcher.

"Now I smooth it with this polished wooden block and then—just watch me do laundry work!"

More Details

He picked up a flatiron which was moderately warm, reversed the relined picture on a marble slab, and began to iron it out with the skill and percaution of an expert laundress doing frills.

Ledwith looked on with a sort of tremulously fixed interest.

"In three days," said Quarren, laying the plastered picture away, "I'll soak off that tissue paper with warm water. I have to keep it on, you see, so that no flakes of paint shall escape from the painting and no air get in to blister the surface."

He picked up another picture and displayed it.

"Here's a picture that I believe to be a study by Greuze. You see I have already relined it and it's fixed on its new canvas and stretcher and is thoroughly dry and ready for cleaning. And this is how I begin."

He took a fine sponge, soaked it in a weak solution of alcohol, and very gingerly washed the blackened and dirty canvas. Then he dried it. Then he gave it a coat of varnish.

"Looks foolish to varnish over a filthy and discolored picture like this, doesn't it, Ledwith? But I'll tell you why. When that varnish dries hard I shall place my hand on the face of that canvas and begin very cautiously but steadily to rub the varnished surface with my fingers and thumb. And do you know what will happen? The new varnish has partly united with the old yellow and opaque coating of varnish and dust, and it all will turn to a fine gray powder under the friction and will come away leaving the old paint underneath almost as fresh—very often quite as fresh and delicate as when the picture was first painted.

Only a Part

"Sometimes I have to use three or more coats of new varnish before I can remove the old without endangering the delicate glaze underneath. But sooner or later I get it clean.

"Then I dig out any old patches or restorations and fill in with a composition of putty, white lead and a drier, and smooth this with a cork. Then when it is sunned for an hour a day for three weeks or more—or less, sometimes—I'm ready to grind my pure colors, mix them, set my palette, and do as honest a piece of restoring as a study of that particular master's methods permits. And that, Ledwith, is only a little part of my fascinating profession.

"Sometimes I lift the entire skin of paint from a canvas—picking out the ancient threads from the rotten texture—and transfer it to a new canvas or panel. Sometimes I cross-saw a panel, then chisel to the plaster that lies beneath the painting and so transfer it to a new and sound support. Sometimes"—he laughed—"but there are a hundred delicate and interesting surgical operations which I [illegible]—a thousand exciting problems to solve—experiments without end that tempt me into vacations that allure me——"

He laughed again.

"You ought to take up some fad and make a business and even an art out of it!"

"I?" said Ledwith, dully.

"Why not? Man, you're young yet. If—if——"

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

I HAVE been in many cities famed in story and in song, noted towns of famous ditties, and I've asked myself what it is that has boosted them along. I have seen the streets of Cairo and have found them quite a bore, and I'd think the merest tyro would grow weary of Pedro or the sights of Singapore. Down wide boulevards I've trotted, lined with costly bungalows. Lawns where landscape artists plotted with vast heaps of coin allotted to present some nifty show. But in vain have they [illegible] have [illegible] these [illegible], have [illegible] [illegible] and have [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] my home Goshen, and the buildings on State street? There are cities that were founded in [illegible] though I've heard their praises sounded and their many charms expounded, State street still looks best to me! [illegible] I've seen [illegible] change and chances, there's no thrill I've ever known in adventures or romances like to that which charms my glances down on State street's magic zone. So I say: "While others wander in strange places of renown, State street finds me ever fonder of its charms, and so I squander shekels in my own home town."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

—By Beatrice Fairfax—

You Are Too Young

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am sixteen and still attend high school. My father is very strict and does not allow me to go out with boys. While the school session is on I don't think I [illegible]. But when vacation time [illegible] I do.

My brother, a college student, [illegible] every one I do, and he [illegible] have a little of the same opinion of my father.

When my mother was alive she always said that I could go out when I was sixteen. My relatives have tried to persuade my father to let me have a little more recreation, but he still refuses.

Will you please tell me what I can do to make him change his mind?

N. S. L.

YOU'RE very young, dear, and can well afford to wait before plunging into the "good times" that waste so much of your energy. But it might be pleasant if occasionally—say once a week—brother managed to include you in a group of your friends. This would bring you close to each other and protect each of you more than youth can surmise.

Business Tact

Lady customer, hesitatingly—Er—I want to see some—er—false fringes. Smart salesman—Certainly, madam. What particular shade does your friend wear?

Anyone Now Can Have Pretty Curls and Waves

Hair tortured with the hot curling iron is bound to become dry, harsh and brittle, as so many know from sad experience. It's far more sensible to use the simple silmerine method which can do no harm and which produces a curliness much prettier and more natural in appearance. And the effect lasts much longer, particularly in hot, moist or windy weather. Silmerine is also a fine dressing for the hair, preserving its texture and health, keeping it delightfully soft and glossy.

When a Girl Marries

A STORY OF YOUNG WEDDED LIFE

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1921, by King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WHEN I said good night to Tom and Evvy at the entrance to Virginia's apartment I felt a great many qualms about the way I'd rejected all their loyal offers to help me. I hadn't told them of Neal's accident and the evidence which pointed to Dick West as its perpetrator. I'd kept my pledge of silence.

Except for the hall light the apartment was in darkness when I entered. When I switched on the lights I started back with an exclamation of astonishment and annoyance. There, cuddled up in a little ball on top of the bed, was Phoebe.

Dining With Evvy.

"Jeanie said you were dining with Evvy Mason," she said reproachfully. "She seemed to think it perfectly all right for you to be friends with Evvy Mason. But I think it's indelicate, to say the least."

"Why, Phoebe," I returned helplessly, "surely you've seen Evvy recently in black. She's mourning Sheldon Blake with all her heart. You can't be cherishing any animosity toward her."

"Evvy Mason was once engaged to Jim, as you seem to have forgotten. And she flirted with him right under your nose. Then she entangled Neal in a hideous engagement. If you haven't any sense of personal dignity, I think it's my place to remind you that you owe something to my brother and yours."

"Phoebe, dear," I protested, sitting on the edge of the bed and taking one of her hands in mine, "do you think it's fair to judge Evvy by yesterday or day before yesterday? She's a changed girl. She sent for me when I was down at Dreamwold that time you were off with Carlotta. Evvy and I had a long, confidential talk.

"At the end of it I had nothing but admiration for her. She'd analysed herself mercilessly. She was ready to assume blame for other people's blunders and to start out with the determination to make no more of her own. Our friendship dates from that time."

Phoebe snatched her hand from mine and slid to the floor, where she turned on me with an air of cold aloof dignity entirely [illegible] a tragic tone," I returned [illegible], confident that Phoebe's sense of humor would come to the rescue even if her sense of justice didn't.

Phoebe took a step forward, groping for the footboard of the bed with a hand which trembled.

"Can't you be serious?" she cried. "Haven't you any sense of the fitness of things? Neal lies in his apartment shot down by the man I was driven to when Evvy stole my boy from me. And you go out to dinner with Evvy! I tell you it isn't decent!"

An Ultimatum

"You don't understand, dear," I said gently. "Virginia was won over by the sweetness of the new Evvy, just as you will be if you'll come along tomorrow when I go to lunch with her"——

"You think you're going to drag me into a friendship with Evvy Mason!" interrupted Phoebe furiously. "You haven't any sense, Anne. I'm tempted to say you haven't any sense of decency. When I tell Neal this I guess you'll find out whether or not you can get away with this high-handed stuff."

"You won't bother Neal now," I said firmly.

"I can tell him just as soon as he's in condition to listen. And in the meantime, I'll give you a choice. If you're going to have anything to do with this Mason woman you needn't speak to me."

In another second the door slammed behind her. Sadly I turned and began my preparations for the night.

But in the midst of them I realised that I couldn't quarrel with Phoebe now. So I flung on my kimono and ran down the hall to Phoebe's room.

SCIENTIFIC HYGIENE

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

HYGIENIC living is more than ever necessary under the strain of our present artificial existence, and hygienic measures can be applied to almost every phase of our daily lives from both the mental and physical points of view. However, an important precaution on the mental side lies in avoiding too much stress on the importance of physical hygiene.

In other words, concentrating on the subject of care of the body to an excessive degree may in time bring about a morbid condition of the mind.

Too much attention given to care of the body soon creates a condition in which the patient becomes fearful that he is not doing exactly the right thing or the best thing for his health. Patients of this sort are called hypochondriacs, and when they have reached the point they have probably neutralized all benefit of the hygienic measures they have tried by wearing themselves out with worry concerning these very mesures.

The foregoing cases represent an extreme point of view and the patients might have found greater benefit in ignoring the laws of hygiene than in worrying themselves ill over them. On the other hand however, there is the extreme of ignoring physical ailments and trying to overcome them through various forms of "mind cure."

In the latter class of cases an attitude of mind may be reached which will make bearable for a time some real ailment, but in cases of serious illness this attitude may result in a deplorable state of affairs, as, for instance, when surgery applied at an earlier stage might have cured the patient or saved his life.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

Aren't hold-ups becoming alarmingly numerous? Isn't the stealing of money while being conveyed to and from banks becoming a very serious matter? Isn't the breaking into stores, offices and other business concerns to rifle safes becoming so common as to call for increased precautionary measures?

* * *

Can the banks do anything to modify these evils? Somehow, our banks in the past do not seem to have developed their possible usefulness to anywhere near the limit. They have been content for the most part simply to take in money and pay it out during "banking hours." It has been and still is difficult for any person holding a job entailing regular hours to visit a bank to conduct any business with it. Even savings banks keep open, as a rule, only during hours when workers are at their jobs, so that it has rarely been possible for a workman to go inside a savings institution.

* * *

Banks, like churches, are likely hereafter to get closer to the people and to become more active factors in the life of their commodities. That bank will prosper most which serves most and best.

* * *

A reader in Passaic, N. J., (Theo. Richart), sends a suggestion which will probably strike you as sensible, and practicable for adoption in towns and cities. Here in brief is what he advises:

At present most banks close at 3 o'clock when most business houses are still busy and drawing in large sums of money. Department stores, general stores, cigar stores, theatres, restaurants, etc., are obliged to retain possession of the bulk of their daily receipts until the banks open next morning. This necessitates the expense of carrying protective insurance for fire, theft, hold-ups, etc. In many establishments watchmen are kept on guard.

* * *

Why not establish a collecting house, he asks. He outlines its possibilities and operations thus:

"The valuables, cash, checks, papers, etc., would be collected by guarded conveyance at the most suitable hour for each customer—department stores before 6 p. m., cigar stores after 11 p. m., etc.

"The collecting house would, if antes the delivery of deposits at the customer's bank at the opening of business next day.

"Th collecting house would, if desired, work like a bank, starting as soon as delivery is made. First the bags would be checked to ascertain the contents. The amounts would then be credited to the depositors, the checks made ready for the clearing house, which could be connected with the collecting house, and the cash assorted for delivery to the bank of the different customers the next morning.

* * *

"The cost of running the collecting house would be met by charging a small percentage of the amounts deposited.

"The benefits for firms, companies and individuals would be:

"Elimination of worry, especially over Sundays and holidays.

"Lower insurance costs for fire, theft and hold-up.

"Partial or complete elimination of night guards.

* * *

"Such a collecting house would best be operated by a bank or a group of banks. The banks would benefit through:

"Accommodation of customers—those doing business with the banks operating the collecting house would get service free of charge or cheaper than firms doing business with other banks.

"Attracting new customers.

"Simplifying the daily routine work of the banks."

* * *

Doubtless a great many merchants and others would be very glad to pay necessary charges for the furnishing of such a service. The art of safe-cracking has been so highly developed that experts apparently are able to open almost any ordinary safe such as is used in business houses. Money, jewels, securities, and other valuables kept overnight in banks or safe deposit boxes, on the other hand, are entirely safe, so strong are the safes used and so thorough are the guardianship and protection employed.

* * *

Incidentally it might be well to organize some such system as this before Winter overtakes us, as the indications are that unemployment will be lamentably rife then. Few able-bodied human beings will submit to starvation. Dire necessity fosters crime. If our cities and towns should be overrun with hungry men during the freezing months of next Winter, thieving, burglary, hold-ups and such like crimes are certain to become alarmingly prevalent. Anything that can possibly be done to diminish temptation should be done.

* * *

Doesn't the proposal here outlined strike one as decidedly feasible?

Improvement in Steel

Developments which are believed to mark definite improvement in the tool steel industry, include starting one electric furnace at the plant of the Halcomb Steel Company, subsidiary of Crucible Steel Company at Syracuse. Melting is going on for the first time in months at Hammond Steel plant.

An operating official of Homestead plant of Carnegie Steel Company says there is a marked improvement in the Pittsburgh steel industry and during the week many additional men will be put to work. Mills at Duquesne and Homestead show an increase of tonnage. It is said the outlook is much brighter than for some time.

Mexican Petroleum and United Fruit Forced Down

FREE SUPPLY OF STOCKS IN NEW YORK

Business on Very Limited Scale and Many Fresh Losses Are Sustained

New York, Aug. 17.—Stocks were in free supply this morning and the market sustained fresh losses. Mexican Petroleum declined ⅝ to 90⅝. Royal Dutch receded ⅝ to 48; Sinclair Oil declined ¼ to 17; Texas company advanced ⅛ to 32⅝; Retail Stores declined ½ to 49⅝; U. S. Steel declined ⅛ to 73½; General Asphalt was off ½ to 42½. Reading was unchanged at 66⅞.

General Electric was off ⅝ to 110⅝. American Sugar was unchanged at 62½. U. S. Rubber was down ⅜ to 47⅛.

By the end of the first 15 minutes trading, however, Mexican Petroleum was forced down 1⅞ to 89 and United Fruit fell 1⅛ to 99⅜. Railway Steel Springs dropped 1½ to 69. U. S. Industrial Alcohol declined nearly 1 point to 44½. Declines of ⅛ to ¼ took place in the railway shares. Business was on a very limited scale.

Foreign exchange gave promise of further unsettlement, preliminary quotations on London indicating additional reactions.

Shareholders of record of Sinclair Oil Company continue on the increase, notwithstanding that the stock has established a new low record. The latest report shows more than 31,000 holders of record, against fewer than 25,000 at beginning of the year. There has not been a month since Sinclair properties were consolidated that did not show a net gain in shareholders.

This gradual transfer of Sinclair from speculative to investment hands has continued through the most recent phases of the market's decline.

Wall Street Briefs

The Republic Iron & Steel is operating at about 40 per cent. capacity, against approximately 15 per cent. in the second quarter and average operations of 25 per cent. in first half of year.

California Petroleum for the six months ended June 30, reports surplus after charges and Federal taxes of $1,520,685, against $1,128,157 for the same period 1920.

Six sheet mills of the Canton Sheet Steel Company, subsidiary of Hydraulic Steel Company, have resumed operations. The Cleveland plants of Hydraulic Steel Co. are reported operating in a small way.

Northwest traffic officials report that on June 15 the bad order cars in this territory totaled 48,000, or about 10,000 more than normal, but that the roads had about 99 per cent. of the cars on their home roads and that repairs were being facilitated. There are 180,000 box cars in the territory ready for the crop movement.

Officials of three tire companies declare there is no reason to expect a cut in prices.

It is believed that the Cuban-American Sugar Co. common dividend will be passed. Last quarter, fifty cents was declared. It is thought the preferred dividend may be declared. The National Sugar dividend is expected to be either reduced or deferred. It is thought hardly likely that this company will continue at the present 10 per cent. rate, when conditions in the industry are such that American Sugar Refining had to eliminate its common dividend for the first time in thirty years. The latter company owns $2,428,900 of the National Sugar Refining Co. stock. The Cuban-American Co. has had a good year from the standpoint of production, but sugar prices have been so low that the year has been most unsatisfactory.

The Pennok Oil Company for six months ended June 30 reports net earnings before depreciation of $236,727, of which $159,506 was earned in the first quarter and $77,221 in the second quarter. The production during the six months amounted to 209,988 barrels of oil.

The International Cotton Mills have passed the common dividend. Last quarter 50 cents a share was declared. The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred was declared, payable September 1.

Return of fifteen-cent collar seen in reduction of prices by Corliss, Coon & Co. to $1.45 a dozen and Earl & Wilson to $1.75 a dozen.

Compared with 1920, Canada's total trade decreased $3,600,000,000 for four months to July 31 and $115,334,168 for July.

[illegible] of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, has been elected a director of the National City Bank. J. Ogden Armour has resigned as a director of the National City Bank on account of possible conflict arising under the provisions of the Clayton Act.

Rubber growers at Batavia, Dutch East Indies, agreed to endeavor to secure a 50 per cent. reduction in rubber production throughout the world. Negotiations will be entered into with the Rubber Growers' Association of London and International Association for Cultivation of Rubber.

The American Association of Joint Stock Land Banks is negotiating with a syndicate for pooled flotation of $15,000,000 to $[illegible],000,000 of 5½ per cent. bonds representing issues of 23 individual banks.

Production Manager Curtis of the International Paper Company has said it is unlikely that the mills at Watertown and other points in Black River valley would resume before the end of six months.

Dividend Declarations

Crucible Steel of America has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred, payable September 30.

The British American Tobacco Company has declared an interim dividend of 4 per cent. for the year 1920, $21 on the ordinary stock, free of British income tax, payable September 30.

The Mergenthaler Linotype Company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent., payable September 30.

California Petroleum for the six months ended June 30 reports surplus after charges and Federal taxes of $1,520,685, equal, after preferred dividends, to $7.79 a share on $14,877,055 common, against $1,128,157 or $4.94 a share in the corresponding period of 1920.

Railway Items

French railways are being operated at a daily deficit of 8,000,000 francs, equivalent approximately to $563,500,000 a year at normal exchange rates.

The Southern Pacific is providing faster fruit and vegetable schedules to Eastern markets, the time from California to Chicago being cut nearly a day and a half. In July 323 trains were handled from coast States, moving 12,000 carloads of fruit and vegetables, of which 285 were on time.

The Chicago & Eastern Illinois for the year ended December 31 shows net receivers' income after taxes and charges $1,512,014, against $1,994,757 in 1919.

Candy Prices

Producers of candy declare further reductions in prices would not be justified by conditions.

Among ingredients of candy that have declined are corn syrup, now about $2.54 a hundred pounds, against $5.69 a year ago; sugar, now 6 cents, against 22 cents. Paper boxes are down, but the reduction is not great where the boxes have standardized fancy stamped paper wrappings.

Large companies pay employes about 80 per cent. more than pre-war scales. A chocolate dipper at one time before the war would get only $7 or $8 a week. Now he receives about $24 or $25.

London Market

London, Aug. 17.—German loans were heavy on the stock exchange today. Marconi issues were weak on an unfavorable annual report. Oil shares were flat, owing to selling by continental and local interests. Shell Transport & Trading was 4⅝, and Mexican Eagle 4¼. Hudson Bay was 4¼. The rubber section was flabby, the position of the staple failing to improve. French loans were dull with Paris. Dollar descriptions were firm in sympathy with New York. Home rails were listless and inclined to sag. Generally the markets were quiet.

Carnegie Steel Output

Production of the Ohio works of the Carnegie Steel Company at Youngstown, O., is on a 60 per cent. basis. The past week its rolled steel production was approximately 13,000 tons, against a rated capacity of 22,000 tons. The iron equivalent of three blast furnaces is being used for steel making, although two stacks are yet being operated.

Gold and Silver Market

Copper Shipments

Panama Canal traffic reports for June show that 9,525 tons of copper passed through during that month. Of that amount, all but 1,000 tons was en route to eastern ports of the United States. The 1,000 tons went to Europe. Tin shipments totaled 1,350 tons, of which practically all came to the United States. In addition, 1,630 tons of copper ore was shipped through the canal, all of which went to the east coast of the United States.

The same is true of 5,040 tons of iron ore. Zinc ore to the extent of 1,400 tons moved through the canal during June.

N. E. Oil Refining Co.

Deliveries from the Fall River plant of the New England Oil Refining Company and from its New Bedford distributing station, during July, resulted in an operating profit of approximately $410,000 for the month, after setting up a reserve of $83,000 for the monthly proportion of the adjustment due the United States Navy. It is estimated that in August and September the company will be shipping fuel oil at a rate in excess of the amount shipped in July, and from 70,000 to 75,000 barrels of

VACATION LIFE CHANGED BY AUTOS

Spillane Gives Interesting Experience of One Tired Business Man and Family

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—Without occasioning much comment a revolutionary change has come in vacationing methods of a great number of the American people.

An illustration is furnished by a Philadelphian's experience. Ordinarily he and his family went to mountain or seaside resort each year by train and found accommodation in a Summer hotel. This year he bought in a department store side tents made to fit onto an automobile. Also he purchased three cots which fold up and fit into a bag. In addition he got a duffle bag.

With this equipment he started from town with his wife and four children. Three of the children are aged respectively, fourteen, twelve and ten years. His youngest child is a boy, age six.

FOUND MANY OTHERS.

He journeyed across Pennsylvania and New Jersey to New York State and went north along the west shore of the Hudson to the Adirondacks.

To his great surprise he found hundreds of other automobile parties travelling in the same manner as himself. They had tents and cots. Along the route, particularly in New York State, he found signs reading "Campers Welcome." Farmers, whose property adjoined the highways, had put up stands for the sale of fruits and vegetables, honey and butter, milk, eggs and poultry. Practically all the foods necessary for his family were easily obtained.

At various places open spaces or wooded groves had been allotted to the automobile parties for camping. There was water nearby and some of the camp grounds had oven or fireplaces for the campers' convenience.

Little public camping grounds were plentiful in the Adirondacks. Some of them had log lean-to shelters for those who cared to occupy them. These usually were close to cold mountain streams.

PEOPLE HOSPITABLE.

All through New York he found the roads wonderfully good. There were so many sign posts that it was impossible for an automobilist to get lost. Everywhere he found the people hospitable and helpful.

"We never had a more enjoyable a picture of loveliness. At Lake Tamaqua we found 2,500 Boy Scouts from New York in camp. They had log cabins and were living a glorious life. Some of them were students of natural history and had collected everything in the way of animals the country provided.

"You never knew the beauty and the charm if the mountains unless you travel as we did. We went up some mountain roads and had views that will be treasured in our memories so long as we live. We had no inconveniences. It required only ten minutes for me to put up both tents, adjusting them to either side of the automobile. They were of duck and shed rain beautifully.

PRICES REASONABLE.

"We suffered no trouble. The country people have sensed the opportunity the new method of vacationing has afforded them and are utilizing it to their own profit and the profit of the travelers. Their prices are reasonable. They have considered every need of the visitors and have made provision for all requirements.

"This development of wayside camps is of sudden growth but is conducted so well that I believe it is going to spread the whole country over, wherever you find attractive waterways, more wooded stretches, hill country or picturesque valleys.

"I think it would be moderate to say we saw on an average 300 automobile camping parties a day. They were all equipped more or less as we were. There were some parties, evidntly wealthy, who rode in one car and had another following them carrying their servants, suppiles and elaborate camping equipment. But the vast majority traveled in modest style, as we did.

"You don't need any guide book. You don't need anything but a love of nature. We met parties from Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Ohio, District of Columbit—all the Eastern and Southern and Middle-Western States in fact. And we saw lots o fPennsylvanians. We saw waterfalls, lakes innumerable, views entrancing. We knew no discomfort. We went as far into the Adirondocks as Lake Clear. Then we turned back.

"On our Northern trip we journeyed 1,050 miles. Then we went South as far as Washington. There we found a public camping ground, too. But we went to a hotel for one night in Washington. Then we came home.

"How much did it cost? Our Northern trip cost, all told, $78. This included gasoline and oil, food for the six of us, $3.50 for washing and ironing our linens, etc. Our side tents cost $22 a piece. Our diffle-bag cost $3.50. At Washington we paid $8 for hotel accommodations. We had no trouble with our car. We paid $1.50 on one occasion to tighten up some screws that only a mechanician could reach.

"We never had a better vacation or a more delightful one. The Southern trip increased our total mileage to 1,400 miles. We came home knowing more of our country than we would learn through many years of ordinary vacationing.

"We lived a new life. It is a form of Summer living that is going to spread throughout America. It is made possible by the automobile. But there is one business that this development will affect adversely. That is the Summer traffic of the railroads."

UNITED FRUIT STOCK GOES BELOW PAR

Recovers Loss by Noon, Having Been Most Active Stock on Boston Market

United Fruit was the most active stock during the first hour's trading in Boston. Opening unchanged it quickly dropped below par. At noon it had recovered its loss.

The majority of issues, as usual, opened unchanged. Losses outnumbered gains in the rest of the list. Coppers were inclined to sag. The Packing group was irregular.

Island Creek, after losing over a point, recovered all but a fraction. Ahmeek lost a point. Other changes were mostly fractional.

Small losses were made by American Telephone, Copper Range, North Butte, New Haven, Swift & Company and Loew's Theatres.

Among those to make fractional gains were Carson Hill, Nipissing, Utah Metals and Swift International.

Stocks were weak on the Boston Curb this morning. Trading was moderately active at the start, but soon became quiet. Boston & Montana, Eureka and Mutual were the most active and each one showed a loss.

At noon Boston & Montana had lost 2 cents at 67 cents; Eureka, 3 cents at 25 cents; Mutual, 3 cents at 33 cents; Calumet & Jerome, 8 cents at 12 cents; Chief, ⅛ at 2⅜, and United Verde Extension, 1 at 22.

Verde Mines was up 1 cent at 22 cents, and Alpha 1 cent at 79 cents. Crystal had lost its opening gain of 1 cent and Colorado Extension had recovered a cent lost at the start.

A financial authority cites the meeting of values as indicating an utter absence of buying power. This factor, more than the urgency of liquidation, is forcing quotations downward at the moment.

Disinclination on the part of large interests to purchase stocks is explained, perhaps, by two factors. The first is that recovery in trade and in prices has been disappointing thus far this year. Six months' statements almost uniformly reveal the necessity of absorbing inventory losses, postponing the day when normal earning power will be restored. And what the final months of the year will bring forth no one dares predict until the extent of the autumn normal improvement can be estimated.

The money rate is not entirely in favor of the constructive side of the market as yet. Call rates persist at 6 per cent., and time money is volatile at 6 per cent., far often above than below this level of late. Capitalists are not inclined to purchase securities aggressively until the money market becomes an out and out borrowers' proposition.

The business situation seems to be improving. Steel operations of the big independents and of the Steel Corporation are up 10 per cent. from the recent low point, and, though prices are as weak as at any time this year, more buying is in sight.

There is greater activity in various manufacturing lines, though inventories are still larger than normal and press for liquidation.

Foreign price indices also showed an advance last month, as did domestic indices. The theorists hold that this betokens an end of liquidations and that the next movement will be of appreciation.

August mail order sales make a better comparison with a year ago than any preceding month this year because decline in volume began about one year ago. Sears-Roebuck's August sales to date are off 20 per cent. to 25 per cent., and Montgomery Ward's sales about 30 per cent. Both companies expect improvement as result of heavy early marketing of grain and issuance of semi-annual catalogue.

Beginning August 1 average number of daily orders equal or slightly exceeds last August, but their average size is much smaller.

Following is the daily average price of twenty active industrials and twenty coppers for the period indicated:

War high, industrials, November 21, 1916, 110.15; coppers, November 20, 1916, 72.12.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—In the absence of news of a definitely discouraging character, the downward tendency of the market probably can be explained only on the ground of scattered liquidations with the usual bear pressure and a lack of outside buying as an offset to this pressure. Public confidence and public interest in the market seldom have been at a lower ebb.

THERE has been a great deal of curiosity manifest in commission houses as to buyers of stocks. From time to time there are reports of so-called inside buying, and these reports occasionally prove true. In such cases, however, investigation usually has revealed that these same interests were short at considerably higher levels and were covering short commitments to offer support during the present period of liquidations. This has been true of many issues, notably the steel stocks, and while there has been much criticism at times of this short selling, it becomes more manifest every day that without this support and with the total lack of public buying power, much more precipitous and serious declines would have occurred.

FOR more than a month International Harvester was held between fractions below 71 and fractions above 75. The short interest was fairly well eliminated through the narrowness of the movement, as well as by an imposition of a premium for borrowing the stock. When distribution had been completed at this level, the price was permitted to decline and transactions were recorded at 68½. Part of the selling for months past has been for the account of interests identified with the company. There have been vague rumors of a dividend reduction, but these are not taken seriously. The company is generally supposed to be a large holder of farmers' paper which is frozen credit, and the agricultural interests are not enjoying such prosperity as will admit of large purchases of new equipment. It is reported, too, that a general price reduction will be put into effect September 1. These are the underlying reasons for the recent selling.

THE arrangement whereby Baldwin Locomotive accepts Mexican government notes for equipment valued at $2,500,000 is raising again in the street the question as to how far a corporation may go in using stockholders' money to finance foreign governments' equipments. The granting of credit by an individual corporation to a private customer is an established business custom. The granting of credits by a private corporation to a foreign government is a matter which is viewed in not altogether the same light.

THE Freeport Texas Company reports for the six months ending June 30 net profits, after expenses, but before taxes, depreciation and depletion charges, of $217,866, equal to 43 cents per share on the stock as compared with $538,493, or $1.47 per share, in the corresponding period last year.

THE Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company reports for July a deficit of $9,036, which is, however, $212,159 smaller than that reported the same month last year. For the seven months earnings are $1,007,371, an increase of $873,597 over the seven months' period of 1920.

THE railway freight movement, according to executives here, has shown some increase since the second week in July, but it has hardly equalled the normal seasonal increase which usually commences at this time and continues up to September or October. The Eastern lines reach some increase in movement of steel in Pittsburgh district, but have no corresponding movement of coal into that district. This leads many traders to the conclusion that surplus stocks of steel are being moved rather than any renewal of steelmaking activity.

THE same character of selling which has been apparent in General Electric for some weeks again was in evidence Tuesday when the stock sold at 109⅝, a new low record for the present movement. Some rally occurred in the closing dealings on the covering of short contracts, but there was little evidence of support.

THE steel stocks have done little more than mark time during recent market sessions. A report was current that Republic Iron & Steel is operating at about 40 per cent of capacity as compared with 15 per cent. operations at the low point of production, and with 25 per cent. as an average for the first six months. The short interest in this stock is practically eliminated, and such few transactions as are reported from day to day represent nothing more than operations of floor traders.

SHERIFFS AND BIG BUSINESS MEN AID RUM SMUGGLERS

By W. B. SEABROOK

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

(This is the fifth of a series of ten special articles exposing the gigantic nation-wide operations of the boot-legging "ring.")

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 17.—One of the toughest, highly localized problems at the hands of the Federal prohibition unit today is admittedly the salt water smuggling "ring" of Florida and the Southeastern coast.

A prominent field official, who has made a thorough investigation of conditions here and up and down the coast, reports that in a number of the coast counties sheriffs, deputies, financiers, bankers and big business men are either lending direct aid to the whiskey smuggling ring and sharing its profits, or helping negatively by refusing to take any part in bringing the offenders to justice.

Following an amazing disclosure of alleged rottenness in high places in Jacksonville, seven prominent men are now under criminal indictment here.

Sheriff W. H. Dowling, who was serving his third term as sheriff of Duval County, has been removed from office by Governor Hardee, following an indictment returned by the Federal Grand Jury, in which Dowling was charged with being implicated with six other prominent men in an immense liquor syndicate.

R. E. Wheeler, president of the board of trustees of one of the largest banks of this city, has also been indicted and has resigned his position following the indictment.

P. M. Hopkins, proprietor of one of the biggest auto services in the Southeast, is under indictment in the same connection.

Four other men of lesser importance, but all prominent in a business way, were caught in the same net.

The men are out on bond, and the trials are expected to come up at the December term of court.

A great fleet, either owned or controlled by the smuggling ring, is now plying between Nassau and Miami and points up and down this coast. About 50 per cent. of the ships fly the British flag, and most of the others the Stars and Stripes.

Most of those now operating as as British boats have recently been transferred, for greater protection, from American ownership. Although some big freighters are engaged in the traffic, the majority of the craft are seagoing motor boats with a capacity of about 500 cases of whiskey each.

Within a little more than six months government agents in Florida has confiscated approximately $1,355,000 worth of whiskey, boats and automobiles.

The method of the salt water bootleggers, which recalls old smuggling and pirate days, is, on reliable and authentic information, as follows:

The skipper of a boat is secretly supplied by the "ring" with $50,000 to $100,000 in cash. This has to be currency. Checks are never used. He goes to Nassau and buys openly on the market there a cargo of lawful British whiskey, rum or gin. He swears to the British port authorities that he is loading for delivery to Quebec or Montreal and gets bona fide clearance papers showing that he is bound with a cargo of whiskey for a Canadian port.

Then by bribing a certain "crooked" negro assistant port collector in one of the ports of the Bahamas, he obtains a second set of papers showing that he has cleared "in ballast"—that is, empty.

Now doubly protected, he starts back for some prearranged secret inlet on the American coast. If he is held up under any pretext on the way, his bona fide clearance papers enables him to laugh at suspicion.

Before actually landing his illicit cargo, he is usually "guaranteed" protection against arrest by local officials. The influential "ring" fixes that. He has nothing to fear except from Federal officers, and Federal agents cannot be everywhere at once.

He runs in at night, usually to some point frequently changed, which is isolated, yet easily accessible by motor truck. Sentinels have been previously posted. If all is clear, the cargo is unloaded directly to the trucks and whisked away, still under cover of the night, to secret storage places, whence it is wholesaled over the entire Southeast.

Meanwhile, before dawn, the ship puts out to sea again, and next day, complacently and openly, it steams into the port of Jacksonville, Miami, or anywhere it pleases, directly under the nose of the revenue cutters and port authorities. When the inspectors come aboard the hold is empty and the skipper has his stcond set of papers (his false papers), showing that he cleared the Bahamas empty.

DECOY BUYS LIQUOR

A typical instance of daring and flagrant violation in Florida, followed by an exciting melee from which the Federal officers emerged triumphant, is afforded by the story of the Japanese freighter, Erie Maru.

Recently, when this big vessel was in dock here in Jacksonville, word reached the Federal prohibition officers that liquor was being sold aboard. A decoy purchaser was sent to the ship. He bought direct from the quartermaster a quart of whiskey for $5. It was American whiskey, bottled in Havre, France. Another decoy was sent. More whiskey was bought.

Then one of the Federal agents went aboard, pretending he was a bootlegger. Still dealing with the quartermaster, he made arrangements to buy a small boatload of whiskey. It was to be delivered by the Japanese at midnight, at a certain point on the beach, in the shadow of a railroad trestle. The agent posted his men in hiding under the railroad trestle and waited.

Midnight came. A boat was heard approaching in the darkness. The agents laid low. They wanted the Japanese to begin unloading the contraband. But just as the boat grounded on the beach the Federal sleuths, who imagined they had the trestle to themselves, were startled when one — two — three — four — five Japs dropped like monkeys from the railroad scaffolding above them. One landed plump on the shoulders of a crouching officer.

The agents flashed their pocket lights and pistols. (They were unable to determine afterward whether the Japs were there as "guards" or whether they knew nothing of the presence of the officers and were simply scrambling down hurriedly to help unload the boat).

CONVICTED AND FINED.

At any rate, "the beans were spilled." There were loud screeches splashes in the water, flashes of light, a fusillade of pistol shots. The agents escaped unscathed, but one of the Japs, it turned out afterward, got a bullet in his leg. The Japs on land ran. Those in the boat leaped out and swam for it. Two were caught in the water and dragged out, shivering like wet rats. Others were captured as they tried to get back aboard their ship. The vessel was seized, the quartermaster and seven sailors were arrested.

It was impossible to implicate the captain criminally, though he had actually been in the quartermaster's cabin when the deal for the unloading of the illicit liquor was being made. Search of the ship revealed only fourteen cases of whiskey left. The rest had been previously sold or thrown overboard.

Various legal complications prevented permanent jailing of the offenders, but they were convicted and fined, and the vessel was not allowed to leave port until its owners had put up a penalty bond.

To Be Continued.

COURT AWAITS PLEA OF TRUSTEES IN PONZI CASE

Counsel for the bankruptcy trustees of Charles Ponzi have been given until Tuesday of next week in which to prepare a statement in connection with their claim to intervene in proceedings before the Supreme Court on the petition of the State to priority in the disposal by Bank Commissioner Allen of $800,000 which came into his hands at the closing of the Prudential, Cosmopolitan and Hanover Trust Companies.

This action was taken when the matter came before Jude De Courcy in the Supreme Court yesterday.

The jurist said he doubted the legality of the claim made by the trustees.

MISCELLANEOUS

IT'S THE TRUTH—

You cannot do as economically or well with any other fuel as much as you can do with gas. That is why long experience with all fuels always leads to the installing of AN ALL GAS KITCHEN, which, of course, includes an efficient Gas Hot Water Heater.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO BUY GAS APPLIANCES.

English Govern Themselves

And That's to Their Credit. We Should Learn How.

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

From the Northcliffe fight with Lloyd George, you learn that the English people govern themselves. Northcliffe, misquoted, was made to say for publication: "The King ordered Lloyd George to terminate the Irish difficulty, saying 'I cannot have my people killed in that way.' "

Immediately the King of England denies that he ever said it. He does this because the PEOPLE of England wouldn't ALLOW him to say that, or anything else that would indicate his belief that power resides in HIM. The English keep a king as a convenient figurehead, pay him a good salary and give him a few palaces, while they run themselves. And they really DO govern themselves, to say nothing about governing several hundred millions of others.

A labor member of Parliament, representing real workingmen, not a labor faker, told the English government that he was glad to hear that the King had denied the statement attributed to him, because he did not want to think that the King would do an unconstitutional thing.

Over there, the King is not even allowed to express an opinion on a public question, such as the Irish massacres, whereas here, the greater part of the time we have an invisible government that governs US quite completely and very easily. Its chiefs live in banking houses, its fighting marshals are corporation lawyers, its soldiers are dollars locked up in banks, never eating or drinking, never dying. Its humble servants often are individuals that the people put in office to protect their interests.

The English people to an amazing extent actually GOVERN THEMSELVES. We ought to send over and find how they do it. Their King doesn't govern them any more or bother them any more than your vermiform appendix governs or bothers you.

We must find comfort in the fact that we are doing necessary experimenting. We got rid of a king, and had the vermiform appendix cut out, but have as yet not got rid of the invisible government that came in when the King of England went out.

Here in this free, glorious republic, we elect a President every four years. Or rather, a few of the important people pick out a man on each side that they would like for President. Then the people vote for him, slap their chests proudly, and the few that picked him out run the country. However, we at least have the framework of self-government, and eventually we shall fill it in. There IS comfort in that.

Have You an Inventive Mind?

You Might Make It Useful to the World and to Yourself, Thinking Over This Problem

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

"Fires in the bituminous coal fields of the Hocking Valley in Ohio have been burning steadily for 37 years, rendering almost useless the entire coal deposit, covering approximately 17 square miles of territory. The coal is of excellent grade, and it is predicted that it will burn for nearly a century to come, as it is impossible to extinguish it."

What would you suggest in THAT emergency? Offhand you might say, "That is a problem for scientists, men that understand not only geology, but also chemistry, the possibility of fighting fire by depriving it of oxygen, etc."

The problem of the burning coal seems like one for scientists only. But it is not ALWAYS the scientist that solves the scientific problem. A safety device still used in more or less modified forms on steam engines was invented by a little boy. He was supposed to watch the pressure, stick to his job and let off steam when necessary. He wanted to go off and play, and being only a boy, he invented a device self-acting, without which thousands of boys would have been condemned to the dull watching that he hated.

The man that invented the sewing machine did not know how to sew. And, needless to say, the Wright brothers, first to build heavier-than-air and use flying machines successfully, were not scientists and had not FLOWN.

Remember, also, that THINKING about a subject is good exercise for the mind and useful to you, when the subject is serious, although the thinking may not produce actual cash RESULTS. We often go for a walk and are glad of it, although we may bring nothing back from the walk.

Thinking is to the mind what a good walk is to the body.

You know how they fight forest fires—go ahead of the fire and start another fire, a "back fire," that turns back toward the original line of flame. When the two flames meet they die out. They also fight forest fires by cutting paths, bare of vegetation, sufficiently wide to keep the fire from crossing.

Fires are fought also by chemical engines, throwing vapors that shut off the oxygen and choke the fire.

How would you advise the owners of the burning coal lands, or the government of Ohio, to go about saving the wealth represented in that burning coal supply?

Should the direction of the fire be ascertained, and a ditch cut across to head the fire off, sufficiently deep to reach below the coal line? Would such a ditch filled with water stop the burning? Could the ditch be dug, deep, ALL around the fire, leaving a coal island to burn itself out?

There can be no fire without oxygen, the oxygen of the air. What is the source of the oxygen that keeps the underground coal fire going?

Does it come through the old mine openings, follow the fire and supply it? Does it come through openings elsewhere? Should they all be closed, the oxygen shut off and the fire killed?

You probably will not reach a solution, since the scientists say there isn't any. But thinking, of ITSELF, is excellent work. A horse may run many races before winning. A man does much thinking before doing any thinking sufficiently worth while to make him rich, famous or useful. The horse that never runs, never wins. That's true of the man that never thinks.

Luxury Taxes in Bulgaria

BUDAPEST, Aug. 17—Rivalry in Socialist experiments in parts of Europe to reduce the peoples of some of the countries to the common level of "proletariat," is in many instances going to absurd lengths.

To raise the money which former regimes merrily blew away in tragic fireworks between 1914 and 1918, the succeeding regimes are attempting to press out of those who still happen to have something or still aspire upward through enterprise and work.

The proletariat peasant farmer government of Bulgaria with Stambulinski, a hard fisted peasant farmer at its head, chased King Ferdinand and his premier, Radoslawoff, out of the country, raised Crown Prince Boris to the throne and then replaced the universal military service with a universal "civil State work" service for both sexes for a period of one year without pay.

The District Council of Rustchuk in Bulgaria, composed of peasant farmers, has placed a new definition upon "luxury' and imposed taxes which is to bring all down (or up) to the horny handed peasants or pay for the difference.

Here is the new schedule as published: Every wedding with music any "ballydance" must pay a tax of 5,000 leva. Where the "music" does not go beyond a "drum", a fiddle and a bagpipe," there will be no tax on the wedding. A "leva" had before the war the same gold value as the French franc—namely, 20 cents.

Women who carry "luxury" parasols or unbrellas, 50 leva tax for such parasol or umbrella. Women with "luxury" handbags, 200 leva tax. Women who visit stores in dresses which are cut out at the neck, 500 leva. If their skirts are more than ten inches from the ground and additional 500 leva tax.

Because Bulgarians returning from America with "dollars" had driven up farm properties to exorbitant high figures by their reckless purchasing, a tax of 20 per cent was placed upon all American money that such returning emigrants bring with them.

Two of the district councillors argued that as many men had lost everything possessed during the war because they were at the front, and those who remained home had piled up riches, the wealth of the latter should be taken away from them in order that they too "may learn something of the misery of life."

The Radiant Christ

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

ARISE, oh master artist of the age,
And paint the picture which at once shall be
Immortal art and blessed prophecy.
The bruised vision of the world assuage;
To earth's dark book add one illumined page,
So scintillant with truth, that all who see
Shall break from superstition and stand free.
Now let this wondrous work thy hand engage.
The mortal sorrow of the Nazarene,
Too long has been faith's symbol and its sign;
Too long a dying Saviour has sufficed.
Give us the glowing emblem which shall mean,
Mankind awakened to the Self Divine;
The living emblem of the Radiant Christ.

Too long the crucifix on Calvary's height
Has cast its shadow on the human heart.
Let now Religion's great co-worker Art
Limn on the background of departing night,
The shining Face all palpitant with light,
And God's true message to the world impart.
Go tell each toiler in the home and mart,
"Lo, Christ is with ye, if ye seek aright."
The world forgets the vital word Christ taught;
The only word the world has need to know;
The answer to creation's problem—Love.
The world remembers what the Christ forgot;
His cross of anguish and His death of woe;
Release the martyr, and the cross remove!

For now "the former things have passed away."
And man, forgetting that which lies behind,
And ever pressing forward, seeks to find
The prize of his high calling. Send a ray
From Art's bright sun to fortify the day,
And blaze the trail to every mortal mind.
The new religion lies in being kind;
Faith stands and works where once it knelt to pray;
Faith counts its gain where once it reckoned loss;
Ascending paths its patient feet have trod;
Man looks within and finds salvation there.
Release the suffering Saviour from the Cross,
And give the waiting world its Radiant God.

MONARCHIST PLOT TO MASSACRE JEWS

Herman Bernstein Exposes Russian Plan to Slaughter Jews and Restore Tsar After Overthrowing Soviet

In this, the fifth article of the series prepared by Herman Bernstein from the official records of meetings held in Constantinople during the early months of this year, there is shown further development of the Russian monarchists' plot to massacre Jews and restore a Tsar.

At this session Father Vastokov proposed an appeal to the Russian people, accusing the Jews of murdering "our beloved monarch" and asking the people to rally around the Grand Duke Dmitry Pavlovitch and wreak vengeance on the "Jewish oppressors." The different delegates voiced their opinions, as the minutes show, and all agreed that the step most necessary to the success of the movement to restore a Tsar was the slaughter of the Jews.

The record of the fifth session is as follows:

By HERMAN BERNSTEIN.

PROTOCOL NO. 5 of the sessions of the Committee of Saving the Fatherland. March 6, 1921.

President, General A. P. Krivoshein. Present, General S. G. Klimovitch, General K. L. Slaschev, Father Vostokov, P. S. Lukomsky, S. I. Durasovitch, V. D. Orlov and D. M. Baranov.

GENERAL KRIVOSHEIN—The events which have developed compel us to divert somewhat from the systematic organization of our work. Time imperatively demands action. In connection with the events in Russia we have received also favorable news from Berlin and from Siberia, where our friends have already undertaken real steps. It will be necessary for us only to co-ordinate these actions. Therefore I regarded it essential to discuss with some of us these questions, to acquaint them with the news and to ask them to work out appropriate reports with which we shall familiarize ourselves without delay.

GENERAL LUKOMSKY — According to the news received from Berlin from Senator Rimsky-Korsako, the Grand Duke Dmitry Pavlovitch came to Berlin. This royal heir of the Romanoff dynasty is absolutely worthy of the throne and the crown, especially since he is supported by our Berlin friends headed by Senator Rimsky-Korsakov and Belgrad. Besides, we have information that in Siberia it is possible to reorganize a military force out of the remnants of the armies of Semenoff and Baron Ungen for the support of our idea. In this case Japan would be a perfectly safe base.

Such a situation is of great advantage to our cause and can be easily utilized for the good of our fatherland. It seems to me that it is possible to organize here a military group of the soldiers sympathetic to our cause. All we need is to supply them both provisions and uniforms.

With such an organized attack we could easily establish in Russia a military dictatorship with the Grand Duke Dmitry Pavlovitch at the head. Then our aim is attained, and we will be able to carry out our plans.

APPEAL TO PEOPLE.

FATHER VOSTOKOV—In order to rouse the consciousness of the Russian people and to point out to them the true road leading to the salvation of our fatherland, I propose the publication of the following appeal to all Russian people:

"Russian People!

"For four years the anti-Christ has been the master of our ancient land. He has ruined your homes, he has tortured you with starvation, he has mocked your wives and daughters. The strongest and best of you he has taken away by force from your native villages and sent you to wage a fratricidal criminal war.

"What is more, he has desecrated your churches, he has blasphemously mocked your religion, he has cast mud upon the Lord your God, His Son and the Holy Virgin. For four years the accursed blasphemers have reigned over the Greek Orthodox Russian land. The Jews and the oppressors have brutally murdered our beloved monarch and the entire royal family. In their bloody prisons perished the best Russian people, including some of the spiritual leaders devoted to the Russian people. Many young and noble lives have perished at the hands of the hangmen because they did not want to recognize the authority of the Jewish usurpers.

"For four years the long-suffering Russian nation has endured injustice, oppression and humiliation heaped upon them by Jewish commissaries.

NEED OF MONARCH.

"At last the cup of our patience is overfilled. Those who have been led astray have seen that without a monarch, without a strong power restored by God, there can be no order and happiness. The people have arisen against their oppressors, and the day of judgment is close at hand.

"The Grand Duke Dmitry Pavlovitch is going to restore the throne left him by God and his ancestors. At the head of his glorious, Christ-loving army he is going to grant his beloved people peace and order.

"Russian people! Rally about the God-anointed! Break down the Jewish yoke by your united efforts, and wreak your vengeance on your oppressors—the servants of the anti-Christ.

"Forward, for your Faith, the Tsar and the Fatherland!

"Glory to the God-anointed, the Grand Duke Dmitry Pavlovitch!

"Glory to his loyal heroes—to his warriors!

"Amen!"

I propose that this appeal be published immediately. Besides, we should instruct the priests to read it to the people in the churches, with explanatory comments, or with a sermon on our loyalty to the monarch and our hatred for the Jewish race. Simultaneously the people should be asked to swear allegiance to the Tsar and the fatherland.

PLAN APPROVED.

DURASOVITCH—Yes. This would be a good idea. It is necessary to show the people immediately our intentions and our plans. We shall drown the hateful commune in Jewish blood and we shall bring back a Romanoff to the throne.

GENERAL SLASCHEV—Resolute actions are much better than words. I entirely approve the proposition of the Father.

GENERAL KLIMOVITCH — The absence of disagreements clearly shows what our decision should be: DICTATORSHIP, and through it MONARCHY. We must now elaborate a plan of the organization of the government and its policy. For this purpose we must confer with our friends in Berlin and Siberia. But we must have our own projects as well. Therefore I consider it necessary that we have such a project worked out in detail, which could serve as a basis for our negotiations and all our future actions. We have already discussed the main points of such project, and in principle it will meet with no opposition. It is necessary to formulate all this and prepare a systematic outline.

GENERAL KRIVOSHEIN — His excellency has done my task of summing up the discussions, and all there is left for me to do is to propose that this project be prepared for the next session of our conference. The work of this session is ended. The meeting is adjourned. The next session will be held on March 8.

BARANOV—Long live our beloved monarch, his imperial majesty, the emperor of all Russia, Dmitry I. Pavlovitch!

Seal of the Committee

(The original is signed by the President of the conference, A. Krivoshein.)

Correct in accordance with the original,

A. PETRUSEVITCH,
Secretary.

YOUR CAR

As a car owner there is no novelty and not unusual pleasure in car riding, but there are many persons in your city and in your town to whom an auto ride is an event and something which might be of great benefit to them.

Why not use your car occasionally to take children from the orphanage, some shut-ins, some really poor persons who would enjoy the ride and could not do so unless someone was thoughtful.

It would be real pleasure to you as well as to these persons.

Childless married couples should be particularly anxious to give some little one a good time and it would be a wonderful treat to the little folk who do not get an opportunity to visit the country, to have the chance to spend a day in romping and playing among new surroundings without the usual home restrictions.

Isn't there some one in your neighborhood who cannot walk easily and who is in need of a ride?

It is really a very little thing for you to do.

Why not elect yourself into the "I Will Give Pleasure Club."

You will experience more enjoyment than those who accompany you.
